

Seeking Justice with the Love of God

May 25, 2018

Chief Justice Robert J. Lynn, Chairperson
New Hampshire Supreme Court
Advisory Committee on Rules
One Charles Doe Drive
Concord, NH 03301

Attn: Ms. Carolyn Koegler, Secretary

By email: rulescomment@courts.state.nh.us

Re: Christian Legal Society Comment Letter Opposing Adoption of Model Rule 8.4(g)

Dear Chief Justice Lynn and members of the Advisory Committee on Rules:

Because ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) would operate as a speech code for New Hampshire attorneys, Christian Legal Society respectfully requests that the Court reject this deeply flawed and rightly criticized black-letter rule, which was recently adopted by the American Bar Association at its 2016 Annual Meeting in San Francisco. The three proposed rules that this Committee is considering for possible adoption are so closely patterned on ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) that they suffer from its same defects and, for that reason, should be rejected.

Like the proverbial sword of Damocles, all three proposed rules would hang over the free speech of every New Hampshire lawyer, chilling speech on important public matters. Sadly, we live at a time when many people, including lawyers, are willing to suppress the free speech of those with whom they disagree. At a time when freedom of speech needs more breathing space, not less, ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) threatens to suffocate attorneys' speech.

A number of scholars agree that ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) will operate as a speech code for lawyers. For example, Professor Eugene Volokh of UCLA School of Law, a nationally recognized First Amendment expert, has summarized his concerns about ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) and its impact on attorneys' speech in a two-minute video released by the Federalist Society.¹

The late Professor Ronald Rotunda, a highly respected scholar in both constitutional law and legal ethics, warned that ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) threatens lawyers' First Amendment rights.² Regarding the new rule, he and Professor John S. Dzienkowski wrote, in the 2017-2018 edition of Legal Ethics: The Lawyer's Deskbook on Professional Responsibility, “[t]he ABA’s efforts are well intentioned, but . . . raise problems of vagueness, overbreadth, and chilling protected speech under the First Amendment.”³

¹ Eugene Volokh, A Nationwide Speech Code for Lawyers?, The Federalist Society (May 2, 2017), <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=AfpdWmlOXbA> (last visited May 1, 2018). Professor Volokh expanded on the many problems of ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) in a debate with a proponent of Model Rule 8.4(g) at the Federalist Society National Student Symposium in March 2017. Debate: ABA Model Rule 8.4(g), The Federalist Society (Mar. 13, 2017), <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=b074xW5kvB8&t=50s> (last visited May 1, 2018).

Professor Josh Blackman warns that ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) will have “chilling effects on speech,” and “sweeps in a range of constitutionally protected speech,” while its “comments establish an invalid form of viewpoint discrimination.”⁴ “Because no jurisdiction has ever attempted to enforce a speech code over social activities merely ‘connected with the practice of law,’” he concludes that “[i]f a jurisdiction adopts Rule 8.4(g), some lucky attorney can become a test case with his or her livelihood on the line. This is not a mere academic exercise.”⁵

In a thoughtful examination of the rule’s legislative history, practitioners Andrew Halaby and Brianna Long conclude that ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) “is riddled with unanswered questions, including but not limited to uncertainties as to the meaning of key terms, how it interplays with other provisions of the Model Rules, and what disciplinary sanctions should apply to a violation; as well as due process and First Amendment free expression infirmities.”⁶ They recommend that “jurisdictions asked to adopt it should think long and hard about whether such a rule can be enforced, constitutionally or at all.”⁷ In their view, “the new model rule cannot be considered a serious suggestion of a workable rule of professional conduct to which real world lawyers may be fairly subjected.”⁸

There are many areas of concern with the proposed rule. The most troubling is the likelihood that it will chill lawyers’ expression of disfavored political, social, religious, and cultural viewpoints on a multitude of issues. Because lawyers often are the spokespersons and leaders in political, social, religious, or cultural movements, a rule that can be employed to ² Ronald D. Rotunda, The ABA Decision to Control What Lawyers Say: Supporting ‘Diversity’ But Not Diversity of Thought, The Heritage Foundation (Oct. 6, 2016), <http://thf-reports.s3.amazonaws.com/2016/LM-191.pdf> (last visited May 1, 2018). Professor Rotunda and Texas Attorney General Ken Paxton debated two leading proponents of Model Rule 8.4(g) at the 2017 Federalist Society National Lawyers Convention in a panel on Using the Licensing Power of the Administrative State: Model Rule 8.4(g), The Federalist Society (Nov. 20, 2017), <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=V6rDPjqBcQg> (last visited May 1, 2018).

³ Ronald D. Rotunda & John S. Dzienkowski, Legal Ethics: The Lawyer's Deskbook on Professional Responsibility, ed. April 2017 [hereinafter “Rotunda & Dzienkowski”], “§ 8.4-2(j) Racist, Sexist, and Politically Incorrect Speech” & “§ 8.4-2(j)-2. The New Rule 8.4 and the Free Speech Problems It May Raise” in “§ 8.4-2 Categories of Disciplinable Conduct.”

⁴ Josh Blackman, Reply: A Pause for State Courts Considering Model Rule 8.4(G), 30 Geo. J. Legal Ethics 241, 255 (2017).

⁵ Id. at 257.

⁶ Andrew F. Halaby & Brianna L. Long, New Model Rule of Professional Conduct 8.4(g): Legislative History, Enforceability Questions, and a Call for Scholarship, 41 J. Legal. Prof. 201, 257 (2017) (hereinafter “Halaby & Long”).

⁷ Id.

⁸ Id. at 204.

discipline a lawyer for his or her speech on such issues should be rejected because it constitutes a serious threat to freedom of speech, free exercise of religion, and freedom of political belief.

ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) raises troubling new concerns for every New Hampshire attorney because its scope includes all “conduct related to the practice of law.” According to its accompanying new Comment [3], conduct includes speech. That is, “discrimination includes harmful verbal or physical conduct that manifests bias or prejudice towards others” and “[h]arassment includes . . . derogatory or demeaning verbal or physical conduct.” (Emphasis supplied.)

Furthermore, as its accompanying new Comment [4] states, “[c]onduct related to the practice of law includes representing clients; interacting with witnesses, coworkers, court personnel, lawyers and others while engaged in the practice of law; operating or managing a law firm or law practice; and participating in bar association, business or social activities in connection with the practice of law.” (Emphasis supplied.) In plain English, regulated conduct “includes . . . interacting with . . . others while engaged in the practice of law . . . and participating in bar association, business or social activities in connection with the practice of law.” (Emphasis supplied.)

The compelling question becomes: What conduct does ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) not reach? Virtually everything a lawyer does is “conduct related to the practice of law.” Swept up in the rule are dinners, parties, golf outings, conferences, and any other business or social activity that lawyers attend. Indeed, in an article in the Arizona Attorney, Ethics Counsel at the State Bar of Arizona wrote that, if ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) were adopted, an attorney could be disciplined for telling an offensive joke at a law firm dinner.⁹ Similarly, Professor Rotunda and Professor Dzienkowski have noted that “[t]his Rule applies to lawyers chatting around the water cooler, participating on a CLE panel, or hiring a law firm messenger.”¹⁰ Professor Blackman provides several thought-provoking examples of “how certain topics could reasonably be found by [CLE] attendees to be ‘derogatory or demeaning’ on the basis of one of the eleven protected classes in Rule 8.4(g).”¹¹

Activities likely to fall within ABA Model Rule 8.4(g)’s broad scope include:

- presenting CLE courses at conferences or through webinars
- teaching law school classes as a faculty or adjunct faculty member
- writing law review articles, blogposts or blog comments, and op-eds

⁹ Ann Ching, Ethics Counsel at the State Bar of Arizona, & Lisa M. Panahi, Senior Ethics Counsel, Rooting Out Bias in the Legal Profession, Arizona Attorney, Jan. 2017, at 34, 38 (“the partner’s offensive joke would clearly be prohibited by Rule 8.4(g)”), <http://www.azattorneymag-digital.com/azattorneymag/201701?folio=34&pg=37#pg37> (last visited April 21, 2018).

¹⁰ Rotunda & Dzienkowski, supra, note 3, in “§ 8.4-2(j)-1. Introduction.”

¹¹ Blackman, supra, note 4, at 246.

- giving guest lectures at law school classes
- granting media interviews
- speaking at public events
- participating in panel discussions that touch on controversial political, religious, and social viewpoints
- serving on the boards of various religious or other charitable institutions
- lending informal legal advice to nonprofits
- serving at legal aid clinics
- serving political or social action organizations
- lobbying for or against various legal issues
- testifying before a legislative body
- writing a letter to one's government representatives
- serving one's congregation
- serving one's alma mater if it is a religious institution of higher education
- serving religious ministries that assist prisoners, the underprivileged, the homeless, the abused, and other vulnerable populations
- serving on the board of a fraternity or sorority
- volunteering with or working for political parties
- working with social justice organizations
- any pro bono work that involves advocating for or against controversial socioeconomic, religious, social, or political issues.

Proponents of ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) candidly admitted that they sought a new black-letter rule precisely in order to regulate non-litigating lawyers, such as “[a]cademics, nonprofit lawyers, and some government lawyers,” as well as “[t]ax lawyers, real estate lawyers, intellectual property lawyers, lobbyists, academics, corporate lawyers, and other lawyers who practice law outside the court system.”¹²

Because of its expansive scope, several states have rejected or abandoned efforts to adopt ABA Model Rule 8.4(g). In the past 18 months, official entities in Nevada, Tennessee, Illinois, Maine, Montana, Pennsylvania, Texas, South Carolina, North Dakota, Minnesota, and Louisiana have weighed ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) and found it seriously wanting. See infra pp. 18-23. To date, the only state supreme court to adopt ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) is the Vermont Supreme Court. Because Vermont implemented the rule quite recently, in September 2017, no empirical evidence yet exists as to its practical ramifications for attorneys.

New Hampshire attorneys should not be made the subjects of the novel experiment that ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) represents. This is particularly true when the Court has the prudent option of waiting to see what sister states decide to do. The Court should expressly reject ABA Model Rule 8.4(g). But at a minimum, the Court should wait to see whether other states adopt ABA Model Rule 8.4(g), and then observe the rule's practical consequences for attorneys in those states.

¹² ABA Commission on Sexual Orientation and Gender Identity, Memorandum to Standing Committee on Ethics and Professional Responsibility: Proposed Amendment to ABA Model Rule of Professional Conduct 8.4, at 5, 7 (Oct. 22, 2015), <https://www.clsnet.org/document.doc?id=1125>.

The rest of this letter provides greater detail about the flaws of ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) that are replicated in the proposed rules being considered by the Committee. Specifically, this letter examines these problems in the following order:

- Part I compares the proposed rules under consideration with ABA Model Rule 8.4(g), in order to understand the sweeping changes that adoption would mean for New Hampshire attorneys. See infra pp. 5-17.
- Part II explains why the ABA's original claim that 24 states have a rule similar to ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) is simply not accurate. Other than Vermont, no state has a rule that is as expansive as ABA Model Rule 8.4(g). See infra pp. 17-18.
- Part III summarizes why at least eleven states have rejected or refrained from adopting Model Rule 8.4(g). See infra pp. 18-23.
- Part IV details why ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) will have a substantial chilling effect on New Hampshire attorneys' freedom of speech. See infra pp. 23-34.
- Part V notes that a lawyer could be disciplined for speech that he or she might not know would be considered a violation. See infra pp. 34-35.
- Part VI explores the implications of ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) for a lawyer's traditional discretion to decide whether to represent a client. See infra pp. 35-36.
- Part VII asks whether bar disciplinary processes provide adequate due process protections for lawyers, as well as whether these offices have adequate financial and staff resources to become a primary and fair adjudicator of a higher volume of discrimination claims. See infra pp. 36-38.

I. The Proposed Rules Suffer from the Same Flaws that Afflict ABA Model Rule 8.4(g).

The proposed rules under consideration are all versions of ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) with minor modifications that do not cure its defects. Because it is necessary to compare the proposed rules' texts with ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) to understand that they are essentially the same, we will take several pages to examine their language.

A. Text of ABA Model Rule 8.4(g)

1. ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) reads as follows:

It is professional misconduct for a lawyer to:

* * *

(g) engage in conduct that the lawyer knows or reasonably should know is harassment or discrimination on the basis of race, sex, religion, national origin, ethnicity, disability, age, sexual orientation, gender identity, marital status, or socioeconomic status in conduct related to the practice of law. This paragraph does not limit the ability of a lawyer to accept, decline, or withdraw from a representation in accordance with Rule 1.16. This paragraph does not preclude legitimate advice or advocacy consistent with these Rules.

2. The three comments accompanying ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) confirm its expansive reach.

The Ethics Committee Comments incorporate Comment [4] accompanying ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) into the proposed rules. Because Comment [4] defines “conduct related to the practice of law” to encompass nearly everything that a lawyer says and does, all three proposed rules should be rejected by the Court. In addition, ABA Model Rule Comments [3] and [5] almost certainly will be used to interpret and apply any new rule. All three comments contribute to the unconstitutionality of ABA Model Rule 8.4(g).

Comments [3], [4], and [5] accompanying ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) read as follows, with emphasis supplied:

Comment [3] Discrimination and harassment by lawyers in violation of paragraph (g) undermine confidence in the legal profession and the legal system. Such discrimination includes harmful verbal or physical conduct that manifests bias or prejudice towards others. Harassment includes sexual harassment and derogatory or demeaning verbal or physical conduct. Sexual harassment includes unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, and other unwelcome verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature. The substantive law of antidiscrimination and anti-harassment statutes and case law may guide application of paragraph (g).

Comment [4] Conduct related to the practice of law includes representing clients; interacting with witnesses, coworkers, court personnel, lawyers and others while engaged in the practice of law; operating or managing a law firm or practice; and participating in bar association, business or social activities in connection with the practice of law. Lawyers may engage in conduct undertaken to promote diversity and inclusion without violating this Rule by, for example, implementing initiatives aimed at recruiting, hiring, retaining and advancing diverse employees or sponsoring diverse law student organizations.

Comment [5] A trial judge's finding that peremptory challenges were exercised on a discriminatory basis does not alone establish a violation of paragraph (g). A lawyer does not violate paragraph (g) by limiting the scope or subject matter of the lawyer's practice or by limiting the lawyer's practice to members of underserved populations in accordance with these Rules and other law. A lawyer may charge and collect reasonable fees and expenses for a representation. Rule 1.5(a). Lawyers also should be mindful of their professional obligations under Rule 6.1 to provide legal services to those who are unable to pay, and their obligation under Rule 6.2 not to avoid appointments from a tribunal except for good cause. See Rule 6.2(a), (b) and (c). A lawyer's representation of a client does not constitute an endorsement by the lawyer of the client's views or activities. See Rule 1.2(b).

B. The Draconian Nature of ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) Can Be Seen by Comparing It to Its Predecessor, Former ABA Model Rule Comment [3].

ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) displaced former Comment [3] that accompanied ABA Model Rule 8.4(d) from 1998 until August 2016. Recall that the Court did not adopt ABA Model Rule 8.4(d) because “[a] lawyer’s individual right of free speech and assembly should not be infringed by the New Hampshire Rules of Professional Conduct when the lawyer is representing a client.”¹³ Yet the free speech and assembly concerns that informed the Court’s decision not to adopt ABA Model Rule 8.4(d) pale in comparison to the free speech and assembly concerns that ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) creates. For this reason alone, the Court should reject ABA Model Rule 8.4(g).

¹³ N.H. RPC 8.4, Ethics Committee Comment, https://www.courts.state.nh.us/rules/pcon/pcon-8_4.htm.

1. Text of Former ABA Model Rule Comment [3]:

From 1998 until the adoption of ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) in August 2016, the ABA Model Rules included Comment [3] to Rule 8.4(d), which stated:

[3] A lawyer who, in the course of representing a client, knowingly manifests by words or conduct, bias or prejudice based upon race, sex, religion, national origin, disability, age, sexual orientation or socioeconomic status, violates paragraph (d) when such actions are prejudicial to the administration of justice. Legitimate advocacy respecting the foregoing factors does not violate paragraph (d). A trial judge's finding that peremptory challenges were exercised on a discriminatory basis does not alone establish a violation of this rule.

2. ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) Goes Far Beyond Former ABA Model Rule Comment [3].

The ABA purposely drafted Model Rule 8.4(g) to be much broader than its former Comment [3]. The Rule's proponents explained:

[Comment [3]] addresses bias and prejudice only within the scope of legal representation and only when it is prejudicial to the administration of justice. This limitation fails to cover bias or prejudice in other professional capacities (including attorneys as advisors, counselors, and lobbyists) or other professional settings (such as law schools, corporate law departments, and employer-employee relationships within law firms).¹⁴

a. ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) is substantially broader as to the conduct it regulates: Former Comment [3] regulated conduct when a lawyer was acting "in the course of representing a client." In contrast, ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) applies when a lawyer is engaged "in conduct related to the practice of law," as defined in its accompanying Comment [4], which is quite broad.

¹⁴ Letter from James J.S. Holmes, Chair, ABA Commission on Sexual Orientation and Gender Identity, et al., to Paula Frederick, Chair, ABA Standing Committee on Ethics & Professional Responsibility (May 7, 2014), in ABA Standing Committee on Ethics and Professional Responsibility, Working Discussion Draft – Revisions to Model Rule 8.4 Language Choice Narrative (July 16, 2015), App. A, at 7-9, https://www.americanbar.org/content/dam/aba/administrative/professional_responsibility/language_choice_narrative_with_appendices_final.authcheckdam.pdf (last visited May 1, 2018).

Comment [4] that accompanies ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) is incorporated by the Ethics Committee Comment [4] to accompany all three proposed rules. Comment [4] defines “conduct related to the practice of law” as broadly as possible to include not only “representing clients,” but also “interacting with witnesses, coworkers, court personnel, lawyers and others while engaged in the practice of law; operating or managing a law firm or law practice; and participating in bar association, business or social activities in connection with the practice of law.” (Emphasis supplied.) As detailed infra pp. 23-34, ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) applies to almost everything that a lawyer does, including “social activities in connection with the practice of law.” It would also apply to anyone (“and others”) that a lawyer interacts with while engaged in the practice of law.

Indeed, without changing its substantive meaning, Comment [4]’s definition could be condensed to the following statement: “Conduct related to the practice of law includes . . . interacting with . . . others while engaged in the practice of law . . . and participating in . . . bar activities, business or social activities in connection with the practice of law.” The rest of Comment [4] simply lists some examples of “interacting with others while engaged in the practice of law” and “participating in bar activities, business or social activities in connection with the practice of law.” Note that even this list of activities is not exhaustive, as Comment [4] uses the open-ended term “includes.”

b. ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) is not limited to conduct that is “prejudicial to the administration of justice”: Former Comment [3] required that a lawyer’s actions be “prejudicial to the administration of justice” to qualify as professional misconduct. In contrast, ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) abandons this traditional limitation. As a result, a New Hampshire attorney would be subject to disciplinary liability even though his or her conduct had not prejudiced the administration of justice.

In a recent opinion finding ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) to be unconstitutional, a state attorney general enlarged on this distinction between his state’s Comment [3] and ABA Model Rule 8.4(g):

Proposed Rule 8.4(g) is not limited to speech and conduct that pertains to a pending judicial proceeding or that actually prejudices the administration of justice; rather, it reaches all speech and conduct in any way “related to the practice of law” – speech that is entitled to full First Amendment protection.¹⁵

¹⁵ Letter from Attorney General Slatery to Supreme Court of Tennessee (Mar. 16, 2018) at 7 (hereinafter “Tenn. Att’y Gen. Letter”), <https://www.tn.gov/content/dam/tn/attorneygeneral/documents/foi/rule84g/comments-3-16-2018.pdf> (last visited May 1, 2018). The letter is incorporated into Tennessee Attorney General Opinion 18-11; however, for purposes of quoting the letter, we will cite to the page numbers of the letter itself and not the opinion.

c. ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) dispenses with the mens rea requirement of former Comment [3]: Former comment [3] requires that a lawyer “knowingly” manifest bias or prejudice. In contrast, ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) substitutes a negligence standard and makes a lawyer liable for conduct that she “knows or reasonably should know” is “harassment or discrimination.” Therefore, a New Hampshire attorney could violate Model Rule 8.4(g) without actually knowing she had done so.

This change in the knowledge requirement is particularly perilous because the list of words and conduct that are deemed “discriminatory” or “harassing” is ever expanding in often unanticipated ways. For example, the negligence standard of ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) might be interpreted to cover words or conduct that demonstrate “implicit bias”¹⁶ or “intersectional discrimination.”¹⁷ Certainly nothing in ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) would prevent a charge of discrimination based on “implicit bias” or “intersectional discrimination” from being brought against an attorney. Such charges seem likely given that the rule’s “proponents repeatedly invoked that concept [of implicit bias] in arguing against any knowledge qualifier at all.”¹⁸

C. Comparison of the Proposed Rules with ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) Demonstrates that, for All Practical Purposes, They Are the Same Rule.

1. The Text of the First Proposed Rule (Appendix K of the Public Hearing Notice) Provides:

It is professional misconduct for a lawyer to:

* * *

(g) engage in conduct related to the practice of law that the lawyer knows or reasonably should know is harassment or discrimination on the basis of race, sex, religion, national origin, ethnicity, physical or mental disability, age, sexual orientation or marital status. This paragraph does not limit the ability of the lawyer to accept, decline or withdraw from a representation in accordance with Rule 1.16.

¹⁶ In urging adoption of ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) in 2016, its proponents frequently emphasized their concerns about implicit bias, that is, discriminatory conduct that occurs despite a lawyer having no conscious awareness that his or her conduct is discriminatory. See Halaby & Long, supra, note 6, at 216-217, 243-245. However, Halaby and Long eventually conclude that implicit-bias conduct probably would not fall within the “reasonably should know” standard. Id. at 244-245. We are not so certain. While not disputing that implicit bias occurs, we do not think it should be grounds for discipline and foresee that the Rule will be invoked for complaints of implicit bias.

¹⁷At its mid-year meeting in February 2018, the ABA adopted Resolution 302, a model policy that “urges . . . all employers in the legal profession, to adopt and enforce policies and procedures that prohibit, prevent, and promptly redress harassment and retaliation based on sex, gender, gender identity, sexual orientation, and the intersectionality of sex with race and/or ethnicity.” ABA Res. 302 (Feb. 5, 2018), <https://www.americanbar.org/content/dam/aba/images/abanews/mym2018res/302.pdf> (last visited May 1, 2018).

¹⁸ Halaby & Long, supra, note 6, at 244 (“When a new anti-bias rule proved unsaleable without a knowledge qualifier, one was added, but only with the alternative ‘reasonably should know’ qualifier alongside. That addition was not subjected to comment by the public or by the bar or the ABA’s broader membership.”)(footnote omitted).

The Proposed Rule's accompanying comments include two currently existing comments and four new comments, which state:

1. [Currently existing comment adopted when the Court decided not to include ABA Model Rule 8.4(d) in 2007] ABA section (d) of the ABA Model Rule is deleted. A lawyer's individual right of free speech and assembly should not be infringed by the New Hampshire Rules of Professional Conduct when the lawyer is representing a client. The deletion of section (d) was not intended to permit a lawyer, while representing a client, to disrupt a tribunal or prejudice the administration of justice, no matter how well intentioned nor how noble the purpose may be for the unruly behavior.
2. [Currently existing comment] ABA Model Rule section (e) is split into New Hampshire sections (d) and (e).
3. [New comment] The substantive state and federal law of anti-discrimination and anti-harassment statutes and related case law is intended to guide the application of subsection (g), however, statutory or regulatory exemptions based upon the number of personnel in a law office, for example, shall not relieve a lawyer of the requirement to comply with this Rule.
4. [New comment] See ABA Comment 4 related to the intended scope of the phrase "related to the practice of law."
5. [New comment] As used in this Rule, discrimination and harassment based upon "sex" and "sexual orientation" are intended to encompass same-sex discrimination and harassment, as well as discrimination and harassment based upon gender identity.
6. [New comment] This Rule is not intended to infringe on a lawyer's rights of free speech or a lawyer's right to advocate for a client in a manner that is consistent with these Rules.

2. The Proposed Rule is nearly identical to ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) and, therefore, suffers from its same defects.

As is readily apparent, the language of the two black-letter rules is essentially verbatim. Specifically, the Proposed Rule duplicates ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) in the following ways:

a. The reach of the Proposed Rule is extremely broad and covers all “conduct related to the practice of law.” Ethics Committee Comment 4 incorporates the single most problematic component of ABA Model Rule 8.4(g), which is its fatally overbroad Comment [4]. See infra pp. 23-34. Ethics Committee Comment 4 makes clear that ABA Comment [4] gives “the intended scope of the phrase ‘conduct related to the practice of law.’” For that reason alone, the Proposed Rule is a speech code for lawyers and should be rejected.

b. The Proposed Rule compounds the threat to free speech because it adopts a negligence standard rather than a knowledge requirement. The lack of a knowledge requirement is one of the Rule’s most serious flaws. See infra pp. 34-35. For example, the Disciplinary Board of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania criticized ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) because:

The Model Rule . . . subjects to discipline not only a lawyer who knowingly engages in harassment or discrimination, but also a lawyer who negligently utters a derogatory or demeaning comment. A lawyer who did not know that a comment was offensive will be disciplined if the lawyer should have known that it was.¹⁹

c. With the exception of socioeconomic status, the Proposed Rule encompasses the same protected classifications, including gender identity. Both the Proposed Rule and ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) cover the following classifications: race, sex, religion, national origin, ethnicity, disability, age, sexual orientation, gender identity, and marital status. The Proposed Rule makes clear that “disability” includes both “physical and mental disability.” The Proposed Rule does not include socioeconomic status.

¹⁹ The Pennsylvania Bulletin, Proposed Amendments to the Pennsylvania Rules of Professional Conduct Relating to Misconduct, 46 Pa. B. 7519 (Dec. 3, 2016), <http://www.pabulletin.com/secure/data/vol46/46-49/2062.html>. See also, Tenn. Att’y Gen. Letter, supra, note 15, at 5 (“[T]he proposed rule would subject an attorney to professional discipline for uttering a statement that was not actually known to be or intended as harassing or discriminatory, simply because someone might construe it that way.”); Halaby & Long, supra, note 6, at 243-245; Prof. Dane S. Ciolino, “LSBA Seeks Public Comment on Proposed Anti-Discrimination Rule of Professional Conduct,” Louisiana Legal Ethics, Aug. 6, 2017 (“[T]he proposed rule would subject an attorney to professional discipline for uttering a statement that was not actually known to be or intended as harassing or discriminatory, simply because someone might construe it that way.”)(emphasis in original), <https://lalegaethics.org/lsba-seeks-public-comment-on-proposed-anti-discrimination-rule-of-professional-conduct/> (last visited May 2, 2018).

Like ABA Model Rule 8.4(g), the Proposed Rule includes “gender identity” as a protected classification. Although the Proposed Rule does not explicitly list “gender identity,” Ethics Committee Comment 5 expressly states that “discrimination and harassment based upon ‘sex’ and ‘sexual orientation’ are intended to encompass . . . discrimination and harassment based upon gender identity.”

d. The Proposed Rule may affect the ability of a lawyer to accept, decline or withdraw from a representation in accordance with Rule 1.16. In adopting ABA Model Rule 8.4(g), the Vermont Supreme Court explained in its Comment [4] that “[t]he optional grounds for withdrawal set out in Rule 1.16(b) must also be understood in light of Rule 8.4(g). They cannot be based on discriminatory or harassing intent without violating that rule.” It further explained that, under the mandatory withdrawal provision of Rule 1.16(a), “a lawyer should withdraw if she or he concludes that she or he cannot avoid violating Rule 8.4(g).”²⁰

Similarly, the New York State Bar Association Committee on Professional Ethics issued an opinion in January 2017 that concluded that “[a] lawyer is under no obligation to accept every person who may wish to become a client unless the refusal to accept a person amounts to unlawful discrimination.”²¹ In Stropnick v. Nathanson,²² the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination found a law firm that specialized in representing women in divorce cases had violated state nondiscrimination law when it refused to represent a man.²³

Reasonable doubt exists that Rule 1.16 provides adequate protection for attorneys’ ability to accept, decline, or withdraw from a representation. As Professor Rotunda and Professor Dzienkowski explain, Rule 1.16 actually “deals with when a lawyer must or may reject a client or withdraw from representation.”²⁴ Rule 1.16 does not address accepting clients.²⁵

e. The Proposed Rule would institutionalize viewpoint discrimination against many lawyers’ public speech on current political, social, religious, and cultural issues. ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) was drafted without the benefit of the United States Supreme Court’s 2017 decision in Matal v. Tam.²⁶ See infra pp. 33. There the unanimous Court held that the long-

²⁰ Vermont Supreme Court, Order Promulgating Amendments to the Vermont Rules of Professional Conduct, July 14, 2017, at 3, https://www.vermontjudiciary.org/sites/default/files/documents/PROMULGATEDVRPrP8.4\(g\).pdf.pdf).

²¹ NY Eth. Op. 1111, N.Y. St. Bar Assn. Comm. Prof. Eth., 2017 WL 527371 (Jan. 7, 2017) (emphasis supplied). New York’s rule predates and is significantly narrower than ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) because it applies only to discrimination made illegal by state and federal law as determined by a non-bar tribunal.

²² 19 M.D.L.R. 39 (M.C.A.D. 1997), affirmed, Nathanson v. MCAD, No. 199901657, 2003 WL 22480688, 16 Mass. L. Rptr. 761 (Mass. Super. Ct. 2003).

²³ Rotunda & Dzienkowski, supra, note 3, in “§ 8.4-2(j)-2. The New Rule 8.4 and the Free Speech Problems It May Raise.”

²⁴ Id. (emphasis supplied by the authors).

²⁵ Tenn. Att’y Gen. Letter, supra, note 15, at 11 (“An attorney who would prefer not to represent a client because the attorney disagrees with the position the client is advocating, but is not required under Rule 1.16 to decline the representation, may be accused of discriminating against the client under Proposed Rule 8.4(g).”)

²⁶ 137 U.S. 1744 (2017).

established use of a prominent federal law to deny trademarks for terms that were “derogatory or offensive,” even on racial or ethnic grounds, was unconstitutional viewpoint discrimination.²⁷

In his concurrence, which was joined by Justice Ginsburg, Justice Sotomayor, and Justice Kagan, Justice Kennedy explained that it was unconstitutional viewpoint discrimination for a government agency to penalize speech that it deemed to be “derogatory”: “At its most basic, the test for viewpoint discrimination is whether—within the relevant subject category—the government has singled out a subset of messages for disfavor based on the views expressed.”²⁸

f. The Proposed Rule fails to protect a lawyer’s freedom of speech, including her advocacy for and advice to her client. ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) states that it “does not preclude legitimate advice or advocacy consistent with these rules.” But the qualifying phrase “consistent with these rules” makes ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) utterly circular. Like the proverbial dog chasing its tail, ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) protects “legitimate advice or advocacy” only if it is “consistent with” ABA Model Rule 8.4(g). That is, speech is permitted by ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) if it is permitted by ABA Model Rule 8.4(g). Because it is the epitome of an unconstitutionally vague rule, ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) violates the Fourteenth Amendment as well as the First Amendment.²⁹ See infra pp. 32-34.

The Proposed Rule excludes this sentence from the black-letter rule and partially moves it to proposed Comment 6. In some ways, the Proposed Rule makes matters even worse than ABA Model Rule 8.4(g). First, the nod to protecting lawyers’ freedom of speech is moved from the black-letter rule to the comments.

Second, Comment 1 states that “a lawyer’s individual right of free speech and assembly should not be infringed by the New Hampshire Rules of Professional Conduct when the lawyer is representing a client.” But, as we have seen, the Proposed Rule covers a lawyer’s speech far beyond “when the lawyer is representing a client.” So existing Comment 1 no longer would be adequate to protect lawyers’ speech.

²⁷ Id. at 1754, 1765.

²⁸ Id. at 1766 (citations omitted) (emphasis added). The Tennessee Attorney General similarly relied on Matal for the proposition that “the public expression of ideas may not be prohibited merely because the ideas are themselves offensive to some of their hearers.” Tenn. Att’y Gen. Letter, supra, note 15, at 6, quoting Matal, 137 S. Ct. at 1763; and citing Brown v. Entertainment Merchants Ass’n, 564 U.S. 786, 791, 798 (2011) (noting that “disgust is not a valid basis for restricting expression”); Snyder v. Phelps, 562 U.S. 443, 458 (2011) (“[S]peech cannot be restricted simply because it is upsetting”); Simon & Schuster, Inc. v. Members of N.Y. State Crime Victims Bd., 502 U.S. 105, 118 (1991) (“[T]he government may not prohibit the expression of an idea simply because society finds the idea itself offensive or disagreeable.” (internal quotation marks omitted)).

²⁹ Tenn. Att’y Gen. Letter, supra, note 15, at 9 (citation and explanatory parenthetical omitted). See id. (“The lack of clarity in Proposed Rule 8.4(g)’s terms creates a substantial risk that determinations about whether expression is prohibited will be guided by the ‘personal predilections’ of enforcement authorities rather than the text of the rule. Kolender v. Lawson, 461 U.S. 352, 356 (1983) (internal quotation marks omitted).”) See also, id. at 10 (“[T]he [Board of Professional Responsibility] would presumably get to draw the line between legitimate and illegitimate advocacy, creating a further risk that advocacy of controversial or politically incorrect positions would be deemed harassment or discrimination that constitutes professional misconduct.”)

Third, because existing Comment 1 and proposed Comment 6 protect only freedom of speech, they fail to give adequate protection to attorneys’ free exercise of religion. Even in the context of public accommodations and employment, New Hampshire law provides important protections for the free exercise of religion. See N.H. Rev. Stat. § 354-A:18. But this protection only applies to religious organizations, not to the religious individuals who would be subject to the Proposed Rule. Furthermore, the protection of N.H. Rev. Stat. § 354-A:18 would not apply in a disciplinary proceeding brought pursuant to the Proposed Rule.

Fourth, proposed Comment 6 states that the rule “is not intended to infringe on a lawyer’s rights of free speech or a lawyer’s right to advocate for a client in a manner that is consistent with these Rules.” But as with ABA Model Rule 8.4(g), “consistent with these rules” merely introduces a circularity that creates further unconstitutional vagueness and the potential for viewpoint discrimination.

3. The alternative proposed rules do not cure ABA Model Rule 8.4(g)’s fundamental defects.

a. The Proposed Rule in Appendix L would add “against a client” after “harassment or discrimination.” But this addition does not adequately narrow the expansive overreach of the Proposed Rule for at least two reasons. First, the regulated conduct is still broadly defined as “conduct related to the practice of law.” As discussed supra pp. 8-9, ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) intentionally dropped former Comment [3]’s language that narrowed its scope to “in the course of representing a client.” But the Proposed Rule keeps the broader scope of ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) of “conduct related to the practice of law.” Adding “against a client” after “harassment or discrimination” does not limit the scope of the attorney’s conduct that would be covered by the Proposed Rule.

Second, the added language “against a client” does not limit who can bring an ethics complaint against a New Hampshire lawyer. The language does not require that complaints be brought by clients. Instead, anyone may bring a complaint if that person thinks that a lawyer’s conduct in some way evinces harassment or discrimination against her clients, regardless of whether any client believes that harassment or discrimination has occurred.

For example, suppose a lawyer wrote a book (or presented a CLE workshop) in which she mentioned that she agreed with her church’s teaching that marriage should be legal only between a man and a woman. Anyone could bring an ethics complaint against the lawyer for harassing her LGBTQ clients (i.e., speaking “harmful,” “derogatory,” or “demeaning” words). Lest this seem unlikely, recall the nationally recognized Atlanta Fire Chief, Kelvin Cochran, who lost his job in 2014 because he published a book based on lessons he taught to his Sunday School class, which included his traditional religious beliefs regarding sexual conduct and marriage. In moving testimony before a congressional committee on July 12, 2016, former Chief Cochran described the racial harassment he experienced in the 1980s when he first joined the Shreveport (Louisiana) Fire Department. But, as he notes, while harassed and discriminated against because of his race, he was not fired for his race. Instead, he was fired for his religious beliefs in Atlanta, Georgia, in 2014. His testimony is a sober reminder that in America today people have lost their jobs because their religious beliefs are disfavored by the government.³⁰

As another example, suppose someone in the audience at a political rally hears a candidate for the General Court of New Hampshire, who is also a practicing lawyer, argue for a mandatory retirement age for public officials. That person could conclude that the candidate is advocating age discrimination. Nothing in the Proposed Rule would prevent the person, possibly a supporter of the candidate's political opponent, from bringing an ethics complaint against the lawyer for age discrimination against her clients.

b. The Proposed Rule in Appendix M would not include "against a client." Instead it would add "as defined by substantive state or federal law" after "harassment or discrimination." Because the placement of this language creates new murkiness, it would add to the Proposed Rule's problems of unconstitutional vagueness and chilling of attorneys' speech.

There are at least two different interpretations created by "as defined by substantive state or federal law." First, it could mean that the Proposed Rule applies only to "harassment," as defined by state and federal law, and "discrimination," as defined by state and federal law. Comment [3] that accompanies ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) defines "harassment" and "discrimination" to include "harmful verbal conduct" (i.e., speech) and "derogatory or demeaning verbal conduct." Yet United States Supreme Court caselaw makes clear that "harmful" speech and "derogatory or demeaning" speech are constitutionally protected in part because it is impossible to agree upon objective definitions of "harmful" speech, "derogatory" speech, or "demeaning" speech that withstand constitutional scrutiny, as detailed infra pp. 32-34.³¹

Second, it could mean that the Proposed Rule is triggered only by "harassment" and "discrimination" that are otherwise unlawful under federal and state law. Some states have rules of professional conduct that are triggered only after an attorney has been found by a non-bar tribunal to have violated a state or federal antidiscrimination law. Perhaps this language is trying to achieve that effect. But if so, the language should be more closely tailored to that end.

³⁰ Chief Cochran's written statement, which was submitted to the House Committee on Oversight and Government Reform for its July 12, 2016, Hearing on Religious Liberty and HR 2802, the First Amendment Defense Act, can be read at <https://oversight.house.gov/wp-content/uploads/2016/07/2016-07-12-Kelvin-Cochran-Testimony.pdf>. His oral testimony can be watched at <https://oversight.house.gov/hearing/religious-liberty-and-h-r-2802-the-first-amendment-defense-act-fada/> (beginning at 41:47 minutes).

³¹ See, e.g., Matal, 137 U.S. at 1754, 1765 ("derogatory" speech protected); Brown, 564 U.S. at 791 ("harmful" speech protected).

Both alternative interpretations are problematic because the conduct for which New Hampshire lawyers can be punished will inevitably change, perhaps radically, in the future. That is, conduct that is not considered harassment or discrimination in 2018 will almost certainly be re-defined to be harassment or discrimination in novel ways that are currently unforeseeable. In recent years, government administrators have interpreted Title VII and Title IX, for example, in ways few lawyers anticipated even ten years ago. The ability of a New Hampshire lawyer to keep her law license should not be dependent on federal regulators' creative legal interpretations.

II. ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) is significantly broader than the various anti-bias black-letter rules adopted in twenty-four states.

When the ABA adopted Model Rule 8.4(g) in 2016, it claimed that “as has already been shown in the jurisdictions that have such a rule, it will not impose an undue burden on lawyers.”³² But this claim has been shown to be factually incorrect because the reality is that ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) has not been adopted by any state supreme court, except Vermont, and that was less than a year ago.

Therefore, no empirical evidence supports the claim that ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) will not impose an undue burden on lawyers. As even its proponents have had to concede, ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) does not replicate any prior black-letter rule adopted by a state supreme court. Before 2016, twenty-four states and the District of Columbia had adopted some version of a black-letter rule dealing with “bias” issues.³³ But each of these black-letter rules was narrower than ABA Model Rule 8.4(g).

A proponent of ABA Model Rule 8.4(g), Professor Stephen Gillers, has written that “these rules differ widely,” explaining:

Most contain the nexus “in the course of representing a client” or its equivalent. Most tie the forbidden conduct to a lawyer’s work in connection with the “administration of justice” or, more specifically, to a matter before a tribunal. Six jurisdictions’ rules require that forbidden conduct be done “knowingly,” “intentionally,” or “willfully.” Four jurisdictions limit the scope of their rules to conduct that violates federal or state anti-discrimination laws and three of these require that a complainant first seek a remedy elsewhere instead of discipline if one is available. Only four jurisdictions use the word “harass” or variations in their rules.³⁴

³² See, e.g., Letter from John S. Gleason, Chair, Center for Professional Responsibility Policy Implementation Committee, to Chief Justice Pleicones, Chief Justice, Supreme Court of South Carolina, September 29, 2016, https://www.scbar.org/media/filer_public/f7/76/f7767100-9bf0-4117-bfeb-c1c84c2047eb/hod_materials_january_2017.pdf, at 56-57.

³³ Working Discussion Draft, supra, note 14, at 10-36, App. B, Anti-Bias Provisions in State Rules of Professional Conduct.

Basic differences exist between state black-letter rules and ABA Model Rule 8.4(g):

- Several states’ black-letter rules apply only to unlawful discrimination and require that another tribunal first find that an attorney has engaged in unlawful discrimination before the disciplinary process can be initiated.
- Many states limit their rules to “conduct in the course of representing a client,” in contrast to ABA Model Rule 8.4(g)’s expansive scope of “conduct related to the practice of law.”
- Many states require that the misconduct be “prejudicial to the administration of justice.”
- Almost no state black-letter rule enumerates all eleven of the ABA Model Rule 8.4(g)’s protected characteristics.
- No black-letter rule utilizes ABA Model Rule 8.4(g)’s “circular non-protection” for “legitimate advocacy . . . consistent with these rules.”

Thirteen states have adopted a comment, rather than a black-letter rule, dealing with “bias” issues. Fourteen states, including New Hampshire, have adopted neither a black-letter rule nor a comment addressing “bias” issues.

III. Official Entities in Illinois, Maine, Montana, Pennsylvania, Texas, South Carolina, North Dakota, Minnesota, and Tennessee Have Rejected ABA Model Rule 8.4(g), and Nevada and Louisiana Have Abandoned Efforts to Impose It on Their Attorneys.

Federalism’s great advantage is that one state can reap the benefit of other states’ experience. Prudence counsels waiting to see whether states (besides Vermont) adopt ABA Model Rule 8.4(g), and then observing the effects of its real-life implementation on attorneys in those states. This is particularly true when ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) has failed close scrutiny by several official entities in other states.

³⁴ Stephen Gillers, A Rule to Forbid Bias and Harassment in Law Practice: A Guide for State Courts Considering Model Rule 8.4(g), 30 Geo. J. Legal Ethics 195, 208 (2017) (footnotes omitted). Professor Gillers notes that his wife “was a member of the [ABA] Standing Committee on Ethics and Professional Responsibility, the sponsor of the amendment [of ABA Model Rule 8.4].” Id. at 197 n.2.

State Supreme Courts: The Supreme Courts of Tennessee, Maine, and South Carolina have officially rejected adoption of ABA Model Rule 8.4(g). On April 23, 2018, the Supreme Court of Tennessee denied a petition to adopt a slightly modified version of ABA Model Rule 8.4(g).³⁵ The petition had been filed by the Tennessee Bar Association and the Tennessee Board of Professional Responsibility. The Tennessee Attorney General filed a comment letter, explaining that a black-letter rule based on ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) “would violate the constitutional rights of Tennessee attorneys and conflict with the existing Rules of Professional Conduct.”³⁶

In June 2017, the Supreme Court of South Carolina rejected adoption of ABA Model Rule 8.4(g).³⁷ The Court acted after the state bar’s House of Delegates, as well as the state Attorney General, recommended against its adoption.³⁸ In November 2017, the Supreme Court of Maine announced that it had “considered, but not adopted, the ABA Model Rule 8.4(g).”³⁹

On September 25, 2017, the Supreme Court of Nevada granted the request of the Board of Governors of the State Bar of Nevada to withdraw its petition urging adoption of Model Rule 8.4(g).⁴⁰ In a letter to the Court, dated September 6, 2017, the State Bar President explained that “the language used in other jurisdictions was inconsistent and changing,” and, therefore, “the Board of Governors determined it prudent to retract [the Petition] with reservation to refile [it] when, and if the language in the rule sorts out in other jurisdictions.”⁴¹

On March 20, 2018, the ABA published a summary of the states’ consideration of ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) to date. By the ABA’s own count, five states have declined to adopt Model Rule 8.4(g): Illinois, Minnesota, Montana, Nevada, and South Carolina. With Tennessee subsequently declining to adopt 8.4(g), the ABA’s own count would then stand at six states

³⁵ The Supreme Court of Tennessee, In Re: Petition for the Adoption of a New Tenn. Sup. Ct. R. 8, RPC 8.4(g), Order No. ADM2017-02244 (Apr. 23, 2018), https://www.tncourts.gov/sites/default/files/order_denying_8.4g_petition_.pdf (last visited May 2, 2018).

³⁶ Tenn. Att’y Gen. Letter, supra, note 15, at 1.

³⁷ The Supreme Court of South Carolina, Re: Proposed Amendments to Rule 8.4 of the Rules of Professional Conduct Appellate Case No. 2017-000498, Order (June 20, 2017), <http://www.sccourts.org/courtOrders/displayOrder.cfm?orderNo=2017-06-20-01> (arrive at South Carolina Judicial Department homepage, select “2017” as year and then scroll down to “2017-06-20-01”) (last visited May 2, 2018).

³⁸ South Carolina Op. Att’y Gen. (May 1, 2017), <http://www.scag.gov/wp-content/uploads/2017/05/McCravy-J.-OS-10143-FINAL-Opinion-5-1-2017-01331464xD2C78-01336400xD2C78.pdf> (last visited May 2, 2018).

³⁹ The Maine Supreme Judicial Court, Proposed Amendment to the Maine Rules of Professional Conduct (Nov. 30, 2017), http://www.courts.maine.gov/rules_adminorders/rules/proposed/mr_prof_conduct_proposed_amend_2017-11-30.pdf at 2 (“Maine has considered, but not adopted, the ABA Model Rule 8.4(g)” and announcing comment period on alternative language).

⁴⁰ The Supreme Court of the State of Nevada, In the Matter of Amendments to Rule of Professional Conduct 8.4, Order (Sep. 25, 2017), <https://www.nvbar.org/wp-content/uploads/ADKT-0526-withdraw-order.pdf> (last visited May 2, 2018).

⁴¹ Letter from Gene Leverty, State Bar of Nevada President, to Chief Justice Michael Cherry, Nevada Supreme Court (Sept. 6, 2017), <https://www.clsnet.org/document.doc?id=1124> (last visited May 2, 2018).

having declined to adopt 8.4(g). The ABA lists Vermont as the only state to have adopted 8.4(g).⁴²

State Attorney General Opinions: On March 16, 2018, the Attorney General of Tennessee filed Opinion 18-11, American Bar Association’s New Model Rule of Professional Conduct Rule 8.4(g), attaching his office’s comment letter to the Supreme Court of Tennessee, opposing adoption of a proposed rule closely modeled on ABA Model Rule 8.4(g).⁴³ The Attorney General concluded that the proposed rule “would violate the constitutional rights of Tennessee attorneys and conflict with the existing Rules of Professional Conduct.”⁴⁴

The opinion began by noting that the ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) “has been widely and justifiably criticized as creating a ‘speech code for lawyers’ that would constitute an ‘unprecedented violation of the First Amendment’ and encourage, rather than prevent, discrimination by suppressing particular viewpoints on controversial issues.”⁴⁵ Noting the rule’s application to “‘verbal . . . conduct’ – better known as speech,”⁴⁶ the opinion concluded that “any speech or conduct that could be considered ‘harmful’ or ‘derogatory or demeaning’ would constitute professional misconduct within the meaning of the proposed rule.”⁴⁷

The attorney general highlighted “several problematic features” of the proposed rule, including that:

1. “[T]he proposed rule would apply to virtually any speech or conduct that is even tangentially related to an individual’s status as a lawyer, including, for example, a presentation at a CLE event, participation in a debate at an event sponsored by a law-related organization, the publication of a law review article, and even a casual remark at dinner with law firm colleagues.”⁴⁸

⁴² American Bar Association Center for Professional Responsibility Policy Implementation Committee, Jurisdictional Adoption of Rule 8.4(g) of the ABA Model Rules of Professional Conduct (Mar. 20, 2018), https://www.dropbox.com/s/6seu8x1i0m41116/Model%20Rules%208_4%20Presentation_Final.wmv?dl=0.

⁴³ American Bar Association’s New Model Rule of Professional Conduct 8.4(g), 18 Tenn. Att’y Gen. Op. 11 (Mar. 16, 2018), <https://www.tn.gov/content/dam/tn/attorneygeneral/documents/ops/2018/op18-11.pdf> (last visited May 2, 2018).

⁴⁴ Tenn. Att’y Gen. Letter, supra, note 15, at 1.

⁴⁵ Id. at 1-2.

⁴⁶ Id. at 3.

⁴⁷ Id. at 4.

⁴⁸ Id. at 3.

2. “[T]he proposed rule would prohibit . . . a significant amount of speech and conduct that is not currently prohibited under federal or Tennessee antidiscrimination statutes.”⁴⁹
3. “[T]he proposed rule would subject an attorney to professional discipline for uttering a statement that was not actually known to be or intended as harassing or discriminatory, simply because someone might construe it that way.”⁵⁰

The attorney general warned that the proposed rule “would profoundly transform the professional regulation of Tennessee attorneys.” This transformation would occur because the rule “would regulate aspects of any attorney’s life that are far removed from protecting clients, preventing interference with the administration of justice, ensuring attorneys’ fitness to practice law, or other traditional goals of professional regulation.”⁵¹ That is, the ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) takes attorney regulation far beyond the traditional province of the rules of professional conduct.

In December 2016, the Texas Attorney General issued an opinion opposing ABA Model Rule 8.4(g). The attorney general stated that “if the State were to adopt Model Rule 8.4(g), its provisions raise serious concerns about the constitutionality of the restrictions it would place on members of the State Bar and the resulting harm to the clients they represent.”⁵² The attorney general declared that “[c]ontrary to . . . basic free speech principles, Model Rule 8.4(g) would severely restrict attorneys’ ability to engage in meaningful debate on a range of important social and political issues.”⁵³

In September 2017, the Louisiana Attorney General concluded that “[t]he regulation contained in ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) is a content-based regulation and is presumptively invalid.”⁵⁴ Because of the “expansive definition of ‘conduct related to the practice of law’ and its ‘countless implications for a lawyer’s personal life,’” the attorney general found the Rule to be “unconstitutionally overbroad as it prohibits and chills a substantial amount of constitutionally protected speech and conduct.”⁵⁵

⁴⁹ Id. at 4.

⁵⁰ Id. at 5.

⁵¹ Id. at 2.

⁵² Whether adoption of the American Bar Association’s Model Rule of Professional Conduct 8.4(g) would constitute violation of an attorney’s statutory or constitutional rights (RQ-0128-KP), Tex. Att’y Gen. Op. KP-0123 (Dec. 20, 2016) at 3, <https://www.texasattorneygeneral.gov/opinions/opinions/51paxton/op/2016/kp0123.pdf> (last visited May 2, 2018).

⁵³ Id.

⁵⁴ ABA Model Rule of Professional Conduct 8.4(g) and LSBA proposed Rule 8.4(g) violate the First and Fourteenth Amendments of the United States Constitution, 17 La. Att’y Gen. Op. 0114 (Sept. 8, 2017) at 4, <https://lalegalethics.org/wp-content/uploads/2017-09-08-LA-AG-Opinion-17-0114-re-Proposed-Rule-8.4f.pdf?x16384> (last visited May 2, 2018).

⁵⁵ Id. at 6.

Agreeing with the Texas Attorney General’s assessment of the unconstitutionality of ABA Model Rule 8.4(g), the Attorney General of South Carolina determined that “a court could well conclude that the Rule infringes upon Free Speech rights, intrudes upon freedom of association, infringes upon the right to Free Exercise of religion and is void for vagueness.”⁵⁶

State Legislature: On April 12, 2017, the Montana Legislature adopted a joint resolution expressing its view that ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) would unconstitutionally infringe on the constitutional rights of Montana citizens, and urging the Montana Supreme Court not to adopt ABA Model Rule 8.4(g).⁵⁷ The impact of Model Rule 8.4(g) on “the speech of legislative staff and legislative witnesses, who are licensed by the Supreme Court of the State of Montana to practice law, when they are working on legislative matters or testifying about legislation before Legislative Committees” greatly concerned the Montana Legislature.⁵⁸

State Bar Associations: On December 10, 2016, the Illinois State Bar Association Assembly “voted overwhelmingly to oppose adoption of the rule in Illinois.”⁵⁹ On September 15, 2017, the North Dakota Joint Committee on Attorney Standards voted to recommend rejection of ABA Model Rule 8.4(g). On October 30, 2017, the Louisiana Rules of Professional Conduct Committee, which had spent a year studying a proposal to adopt a version of Model Rule 8.4(g), voted “not to recommend the proposed amendment to Rule 8.4 to either the House of Delegates or to the Supreme Court.”⁶⁰

On December 2, 2016, the Disciplinary Board of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania explained that ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) was too broad:

⁵⁶ South Carolina Att’y Gen. Op. (May 1, 2017) at 13, <http://2hsvz0l74ah31vgcm16peuy12tz.wpengine.netdna-cdn.com/wp-content/uploads/2017/05/McCravy-J.-OS-10143-FINAL-Opinion-5-1-2017-01331464xD2C78-01336400xD2C78.pdf> (last visited May 2, 2018).

⁵⁷ A Joint Resolution of the Senate and the House of Representatives of the State of Montana Making the Determination that it would be an Unconstitutional Act of Legislation, in Violation of the Constitution of the State of Montana, and would Violate the First Amendment Rights of the Citizens of Montana, Should the Supreme Court of the State of Montana Enact Proposed Model Rule of Professional Conduct 8.4(G), SJ 0015, 65th Legislature (Mont. Apr. 25, 2017), <http://leg.mt.gov/bills/2017/BillPdf/SJ0015.pdf> (last visited May 2, 2018).

⁵⁸ Id. at 3. The Tennessee Attorney General likewise warned that “[e]ven statements made by an attorney as a political candidate or a member of the General Assembly could be deemed sufficiently ‘related to the practice of law’ to fall within the scope of Proposed Rule 8.4(g).” Tenn. Att’y Gen. Letter, supra, note 15, at 8 n.8.

⁵⁹ Mark S. Mathewson, ISBA Assembly Ok's Futures Report, Approves UBE and Collaborative Law Proposals, Illinois Lawyer Now, Dec. 15, 2016, <https://iln.isba.org/blog/2016/12/15/isba-assembly-oks-futures-report-approves-ube-and-collaborative-law-proposals> (last visited May 2, 2018).

⁶⁰ Louisiana State Bar Association, LSBA Rules Committee Votes Not to Proceed Further with Subcommittee Recommendations Re: ABA Model Rule 8.4(g), Oct. 30, 2017, <https://www.lsba.org/BarGovernance/CommitteeInfo.aspx?Committee=01fa2a59-9030-4a8c-9997-32eb7978c892> (last visited May 2, 2018).

It is our opinion, after careful review and consideration, that the breadth of ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) will pose difficulties for already resource-strapped disciplinary authorities. The Model Rule . . . subjects to discipline not only a lawyer who knowingly engages in harassment or discrimination, but also a lawyer who negligently utters a derogatory or demeaning comment. A lawyer who did not know that a comment was offensive will be disciplined if the lawyer should have known that it was.⁶¹

IV. Because of Its Expansive Scope, ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) Endangers Attorneys' First Amendment Rights.

In adopting its new model rule, the ABA largely ignored over 480 comment letters,⁶² most opposed to the rule change. Even the ABA's own Standing Committee on Professional Discipline filed a comment letter questioning whether there was a demonstrated need for the rule change and raising concerns about its enforceability, although the Committee dropped its opposition immediately prior to the House of Delegates' vote.⁶³

A recurrent concern in many of the comments was the threat that ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) poses to attorneys' First Amendment rights.⁶⁴ But little was done to address these concerns. In their scholarly examination of the legislative history of ABA Model Rule 8.4(g), Halaby and Long conclude that "the new model rule's afflictions derive in part from indifference on the part of rule change proponents, and in part from the hasty manner in which the rule change proposal was pushed through to passage."⁶⁵ In particular, the rule went through five versions, of which three versions evolved "in the two weeks before passage, none of these was subjected to review and comment by the ABA's broader membership, the bar at large, or the public."⁶⁶ Halaby and Long summarized the legislative history of the rule:

⁶¹ The Pennsylvania Bulletin, supra, note 19.

⁶² American Bar Association website, Comments to Model Rule 8.4 (last visited May 2, 2018). http://www.americanbar.org/groups/professional_responsibility/committees_commissions/ethicsandprofessionalresponsibility/modruleprofconduct8_4/mr_8_4_comments.html (last visited May 2, 2018).

⁶³ Halaby & Long, supra, note 6, at 220 & n.97 (listing the Committee's concerns as including: lack of empirical evidence of need for Rule; vagueness of key terms; enforceability; constitutionality; coverage of employment discrimination complaints; mens rea requirement; and potential limitation on ability to decline representation), citing Letter from Ronald R. Rosenfeld, Chair ABA Standing Committee On Professional Responsibility, to Myles Lynk, Chair ABA Standing Committee On Ethics and Professional Responsibility, Mar. 10, 2016, http://www.americanbar.org/content/dam/aba/administrative/professional_responsibility/aba_model_rule%208_4_comments/20160310%20Rosenfeld-Lynk%20SCPD%20Proposed%20MABA%20MODEL%20RULE%208-4%20g%20Comments%20FINAL%20Protected.authcheckdam.pdf.

⁶⁴ Halaby & Long, supra, note 6, at 216-223 (summarizing concerns expressed at the only public hearing on an early version of ABA Model Rule 8.4(g), as well as the main concerns expressed in the comment letters).

⁶⁵ Halaby & Long, supra, note 6, at 203.

⁶⁶ Id.

Model Rule 8.4(g) and its associated comments evolved rapidly between the initial letter from the Goal III entities in July 2014, through initial circulation of Version 1 in July 2015, to final adoption of Version 5 the following August. There was solicitation of public input only on Version 2, with only one public hearing, and ultimately with no House debate at all.⁶⁷

A. ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) Would Operate as a Speech Code for Attorneys.

There are many areas of concern with the proposed rule. Perhaps the most troubling is the likelihood that it will be used to chill lawyers' expression of disfavored political, social, and religious viewpoints on a multitude of issues in the workplace and in the public square. Because lawyers often are the spokespersons and leaders in political, social, or religious movements, a rule that can be employed to discipline a lawyer for his or her speech on such issues should be rejected as a serious threat to freedom of speech, free exercise of religion, and freedom of political belief.

Two highly respected constitutional scholars have outlined their concerns regarding the chilling effect of ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) on attorneys' freedom of speech. The late Professor Ronald Rotunda wrote a leading treatise on American constitutional law,⁶⁸ as well as co-authoring Legal Ethics: The Lawyer's Deskbook on Professional Responsibility, co-published by the ABA.⁶⁹ In the 2017-2018 edition of the Deskbook, Professor Rotunda and Professor Dzienkowski observed that "[t]he language the ABA has adopted in Rule 8.4(g) and its associated Comments are similar to laws that the Supreme Court has invalidated on free speech grounds."⁷⁰

Professor Rotunda initially wrote about the problem ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) poses for lawyers' speech in a Wall Street Journal article entitled "The ABA Overrules the First Amendment," where he explained that:

In the case of rule 8.4(g), the standard, for lawyers at least, apparently does not include the First Amendment right to free speech. Consider the following form of "verbal" conduct when one lawyer tells another, in connection with a case, "I abhor the idle rich. We should raise capital gains taxes." The lawyer has just ⁶⁷ Id. at 233.

⁶⁸ See, e.g., American Constitutional Law: The Supreme Court in American History, Volumes I & II (West Academic Publishing, St. Paul, MN, 2016); Principles of Constitutional Law (Thomson/West, St. Paul, Minnesota, 5th ed. 2016) (with John E. Nowak).

⁶⁹ Rotunda & Dzienkowski, supra, note 4.

⁷⁰ Id. at "§ 8.4-2(j)-2. The New Rule 8.4 and the Free Speech Problems It May Raise."

violated the ABA rule by manifesting bias based on socioeconomic status.⁷¹

Professor Rotunda also wrote a lengthy critique of ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) for the Heritage Foundation, entitled The ABA Decision to Control What Lawyers Say: Supporting 'Diversity' But Not Diversity of Thought.⁷² At the Federalist Society's 2017 National Lawyers Convention, Professor Rotunda and Texas Attorney General Ken Paxton participated in a panel discussion on ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) with a former ABA President and a law professor.⁷³ Professor Rotunda and General Paxton highlighted the First Amendment problems with the Rule.

Prominent First Amendment scholar and editor of the daily legal blog, The Volokh Conspiracy, UCLA Professor Eugene Volokh has similarly warned that the new rule is a speech code for lawyers.⁷⁴ In a debate at the Federalist Society's 2017 National Student Symposium, Professor Volokh demonstrated the flaws of Model Rule 8.4(g), which the rule's proponent seemed unable to defend.⁷⁵

Professor Volokh has also given examples of potential violations of Model Rule 8.4(g):

Or say that you're at a lawyer social activity, such as a local bar dinner, and say that you get into a discussion with people around the table about such matters — Islam, evangelical Christianity, black-on-black crime, illegal immigration, differences between the sexes, same-sex marriage, restrictions on the use of bathrooms, the alleged misdeeds of the 1 percent, the cultural causes of poverty in many households, and so on. One of the people is offended and files a bar complaint.

Again, you've engaged in "verbal . . . conduct" that the bar may see as "manifest[ing] bias or prejudice" and thus as "harmful." This was at a "social activit[y] in connection with the practice of law." The state bar, if it adopts this rule, might thus discipline you for your "harassment."⁷⁶

⁷¹ Ron Rotunda, "The ABA Overrules the First Amendment: The legal trade association adopts a rule to regulate lawyers' speech," The Wall Street Journal, Aug. 16, 2016, <http://www.wsj.com/articles/the-aba-overrules-the-first-amendment-1471388418>.

⁷² Rotunda, supra, note 2.

⁷³ The Federalist Society Debate (Nov. 20, 2017), supra, note 2.

⁷⁴ The Federalist Society video featuring Professor Volokh, supra, note 1.

⁷⁵ The Federalist Society Debate (Mar. 13, 2017), supra, note 1.

⁷⁶ Eugene Volokh, A Speech Code for Lawyers, Banning Viewpoints that Express 'Bias,' including in Law-Related Social Activities, The Washington Post, Aug. 10, 2016,

These scholars' red flags should not be ignored. The proposed rule would create a multitude of potential problems for attorneys who serve on nonprofit boards, speak on panels, teach at law schools, grant media interviews, or otherwise engage in public discussions regarding current political, social, and religious questions.

1. By expanding its coverage to include all “conduct related to the practice of law,” ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) encompasses nearly everything a lawyer does, including conduct and speech protected by the First Amendment.

Because it expressly applies to all “conduct related to the practice of law,” ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) raises troubling new concerns for every New Hampshire attorney. Its new accompanying Comment [3] makes clear that “conduct” includes “speech”: “discrimination includes harmful verbal or physical conduct that manifests bias or prejudice towards others” and “[h]arassment includes . . . derogatory or demeaning verbal or physical conduct.” (Emphasis supplied.)

Comment [4] confirms the extensive overreach of proposed ABA Model Rule 8.4(g). It states that “[c]onduct related to the practice of law includes representing clients; interacting with witnesses, coworkers, court personnel, lawyers and others while engaged in the practice of law; operating or managing a law firm or law practice; and participating in bar association, business or social activities in connection with the practice of law.” (Emphasis supplied.)

In reality, the substantive question becomes: What conduct does proposed ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) not reach? Virtually everything a lawyer does is “conduct related to the practice of law.”⁷⁷ Swept up in the rule are dinners, parties, golf outings, conferences, and any other business or social activity that lawyers attend. Arguably, the rule includes all of a lawyer’s “business or social activities” because there is no real way to delineate between those “business or social activities” that are related to the practice of law and those that are not. Quite simply, much of a lawyer’s social life can be viewed as business development and opportunities to cultivate relationships with current clients or gain exposure to new clients.

Activities likely to fall within the proposed ABA Model Rule 8.4(g)’s scope include:

- presenting CLE courses at conferences or through webinars
- teaching law school classes as a faculty or adjunct faculty member
- publishing law review articles, blogposts, and op-eds
- giving guest lectures at law school classes

https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/volokh-conspiracy/wp/2016/08/10/a-speech-code-for-lawyers-banning-viewpoints-that-express-bias-including-in-law-related-social-activities-2/?tid=a_inl&utm_term=.f4beacf8a086 (last visited May 2, 2018).

⁷⁷ See Halaby & Long, supra note 6, at 226 (“The proposed comment of Version 3 expanded the ambit of ‘conduct related to the practice of law’ to include virtually anything a working lawyer might do.”)

- granting media interviews
- speaking at public events
- participating in panel discussions that touch on controversial political, religious, and social viewpoints
- serving on the boards of various religious or other charitable institutions
- lending informal legal advice to nonprofits
- serving at legal aid clinics
- serving political or social action organizations
- lobbying for or against various legal issues
- testifying before a legislative body
- writing a letter to one's government representatives
- serving one's congregation
- serving one's alma mater if it is a religious institution of higher education
- serving religious ministries that assist prisoners, the underprivileged, the homeless, the abused, and other vulnerable populations
- serving on the board of a fraternity or sorority
- volunteering with or working for political parties
- working with social justice organizations
- any pro bono work that involves advocating for or against controversial socioeconomic, religious, social, or political issues⁷⁸

ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) would make a lawyer subject to disciplinary liability for a host of expressive activities. At bottom, ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) has a “fundamental defect,” which is that “it wrongly assumes that the only attorney speech that is entitled to First Amendment protection is purely private speech that is entirely unrelated to the practice of law. But the First Amendment provides robust protection to attorney speech.”⁷⁹

2. Attorneys could be subject to discipline for guidance they offer when serving on the boards of their congregations, religious schools and colleges, or other religious ministries.

Many lawyers sit on the boards of their congregations, religious schools and colleges, and other religious ministries. These ministries provide incalculable good to people in their local communities, as well as nationally and internationally. These ministries also face innumerable ⁷⁸ Tex. Att’y Gen. Op., supra, note 37, at 3 (“Given the broad nature of this rule, a court could apply it to an attorney’s participation in a continuing legal education panel discussion, authoring a law review article, or informal conversations at a bar association event.”); La. Att’y Gen. Op., supra, note 39, at 6 (“[A] lawyer who is asked his opinions, thoughts, or impressions on legal matters taking place in the news at a social function could also be found to be engaged in conduct related to the practice of law.”).

⁷⁹ Tenn. Att’y Gen. Letter, supra, note 15, at 2. See id. at 10 (“[T]he goal of the proposed rule is to subject to regulatory scrutiny all attorney expression that is in any way connected with the practice of law. That approach is wholly inconsistent with the First Amendment.”)(Emphasis in original.)

legal questions and regularly turn to the lawyers serving as volunteers on their boards for pro bono guidance.

As a volunteer on a religious institution's board, a lawyer may not be "representing a client," but may nonetheless be engaged in "conduct related to the practice of law." For example, a lawyer may be asked to help craft her church's policy regarding whether its clergy will perform marriages or whether it will host receptions for weddings that are contrary to its religious beliefs. A religious college may ask a lawyer who serves on its board of trustees to review its housing policy or its student code of conduct. Drafting and reviewing legal policies may qualify as "conduct related to the practice of law," but surely a lawyer should not fear being disciplined for volunteer legal work she performs for her church or her alma mater.⁸⁰

By chilling attorneys' speech, the Rule is likely to do real harm to religious institutions and their good works in their communities. A lawyer should not have to worry about whether her volunteer work treads too closely to the vague line of "conduct related to the practice of law," yet ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) creates such a concern.⁸¹ Because ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) seems to prohibit lawyers from providing counsel, whether paid or volunteer, in these contexts, the rule will have a stifling and chilling effect on lawyers' free speech and free exercise of religion when serving their congregations and religious institutions.

3. Attorneys' public speech on political, social, cultural, and religious topics would be subject to discipline.

Lawyers often are asked to speak to community groups, classes, and other audiences about current legal issues of the day. They frequently participate in panel discussions about the pros and cons of various legal questions regarding sensitive social and political issues. Their commentary is sought by the media regarding controversial issues in their community, state, and nation.

Of course, lawyers are asked to speak because they are lawyers. And a lawyer's speaking engagements often have a dual purpose of increasing the lawyer's visibility and creating new business opportunities.

Writing -- "Verbal conduct" includes written communication. Is a law professor or adjunct faculty member subject to discipline for a law review article that explores controversial topics or expresses unpopular viewpoints? Must lawyers forswear writing blogposts or letters to the editor because someone may file a complaint with the bar? Must lawyers forgo media ⁸⁰ Tenn. Att'y Gen. Letter, supra, note 15, at 8 n.8 ("statements made by an attorney in his or her capacity as a member of the board of a nonprofit or religious organization" "could be deemed sufficiently 'related to the practice of law' to fall within the scope of Proposed Rule 8.4(g)").

⁸¹ Tex. Att'y Gen. Op., supra, note 37, at 4 ("Model Rule 8.4(g) could also be applied to restrict an attorney's religious liberty and prohibit an attorney from zealously representing faith-based groups.") interviews on topics about which they have some particularly insightful comments because anyone hearing the interview could file a complaint if offended? If so, public discourse and civil society will suffer from the ideological paralysis that ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) will impose on lawyers.

Speaking -- It would seem that all public speaking by lawyers on legal issues falls within ABA Model Rule 8.4(g)'s prohibition. But even if some public speaking were to fall outside the parameters of "conduct related to the practice of law," how is a lawyer to know which speech is safe and which will subject him to potential discipline? May a lawyer participate in a panel discussion only if all the lawyers on the panel speak in favor of the inclusion of various protected characteristics in a nondiscrimination law being debated in the state legislature? Is a lawyer subject to discipline if she testifies before a city council against amending a nondiscrimination law to add any or all the protected characteristics listed in proposed ABA Model Rule 8.4(g)? What if she testifies for adding all protected categories but urges that a religious exemption be included in the legislation? Is a candidate for office subject to discipline for socio-economic discrimination if she proposes that only low-income students be allowed to participate in government tuition assistance programs?

The Rule creates a cloud of doubt that will inevitably chill lawyers' public speech on one side of these current political and social issues, while simultaneously creating no disincentive for lawyers who speak on the opposing side of these controversies. As a state attorney general recently advised:

Even if the [Board of Professional Responsibility] may ultimately decide not to impose disciplinary sanctions on the basis of such speech, or a court may ultimately invalidate on First Amendment grounds any sanction imposed, the fact that the rule on its face would apply to speech of that nature would undoubtedly chill attorneys from engaging in speech in the first place.⁸²

Sadly, we live at a time when many people, including lawyers, are willing to suppress the free speech of those with whom they disagree. At a time when freedom of speech needs more breathing space, not less, ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) threatens to suffocate attorneys' speech.

4. Attorneys' membership in religious, social, or political organizations would be subject to discipline.

ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) raises severe doubts about the ability of lawyers to participate in political, social, cultural, or religious organizations that promote traditional values regarding sexual conduct and marriage. For example, in 2015, the California Supreme Court adopted a disciplinary rule that prohibits all California state judge from participating in Boy Scouts because of the organization's teaching regarding sexual conduct.⁸³

⁸² Tenn. Att'y Gen. Letter, supra, note 15, at 8.

Would proposed ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) subject lawyers to disciplinary action for participating with their children in youth organizations that teach traditional values regarding sexual conduct or marriage? Would it subject lawyers to disciplinary action for belonging to political organizations that advocate for laws that promote traditional values regarding sexual conduct and marriage?

Proposed ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) raises additional concerns about whether an attorney may be disciplined for her membership in a religious organization that chooses its leaders according to its religious beliefs, or that holds to the religious belief that marriage is only between a man and a woman, or numerous other religious beliefs implicated by proposed ABA Model Rule 8.4(g).

Professor Rotunda and Professor Dzienkowski have expressed concern that ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) would subject lawyers to discipline for attending events sponsored by the St. Thomas More Society, an organization of Catholic lawyers and judges who meet together to share their faith. Attending the Red Mass, an annual mass held by the Catholic Church for lawyers, judges, law professors, and law students, could be deemed conduct related to the practice of law that runs afoul of the Rule because of the Catholic Church's limitation of the priesthood to males, its opposition to abortion, or its teachings regarding marriage, sexual conduct, or sexual identity.⁸⁴

The Tennessee, Texas, and Louisiana attorney generals expressed similar concerns.⁸⁵ The Tennessee Attorney General warned that "serving as a member of the board of a religious organization, participating in groups such as the Christian Legal Society, or even speaking about how one's religious beliefs influence one's work as an attorney" could "be deemed conduct 'related to the practice of law.'"⁸⁶ Furthermore, ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) "is far broader than Rule 3.6 of the Code of Judicial Conduct" because Rule 3.6's Comment [4] clarifies that a judge's membership in a religious organization does not violate the rule.⁸⁷ New Hampshire

⁸³ Calif. Sup. Ct., Media Release, "Supreme Court Eliminates Ethics Exception that Permitted Judges to Belong to Nonprofit Youth Organizations that Discriminate," Jan. 23, 2015, http://www.courts.ca.gov/documents/sc15-Jan_23.pdf (last visited May 2, 2018).

⁸⁴ Rotunda & Dzienkowski, supra, note 3, in "§ 8.4-2(j)-2. The New Rule 8.4 and the Free Speech Problems It May Raise."

⁸⁵ Tex. Att'y Gen. Op., supra, note 43, at 5 ("Many attorneys belong to faith-based legal organizations, such as a Christian Legal Society, a Jewish Legal Society, or a Muslim Legal Society, but Model Rule 8.4(g) could curtail such participation for fear of discipline."); La. Att'y Gen. Op., supra, note 54, at 6 ("Proposed 8.4(h) could apply to many of the faith-based legal societies such as the Christian Legal Society, Jewish Legal Society, and Muslim Legal Society.")

⁸⁶ Tenn. Att'y Gen. Letter, supra, note 15, at 10.

⁸⁷ Id. at 9.

similarly has an exception for judges' membership in religious organizations.⁸⁸ By contrast, ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) "contains no exception for membership in a religious organization."⁸⁹

B. ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) Would Institutionalize Viewpoint Discrimination Against Many Lawyers' Public Speech on Current Political, Social, Religious, and Cultural Issues.

1. ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) on its face discriminates on the basis of viewpoint.

As seen in its Comment [4], ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) would explicitly protect some viewpoints over others by allowing lawyers to "engage in conduct undertaken to promote diversity and inclusion without violating this Rule by, for example, implementing initiatives aimed at recruiting, hiring, retaining and advancing diverse employees or sponsoring diverse law student organizations."⁹⁰ Because "conduct" includes "verbal conduct," ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) impermissibly favors speech that "promote[s] diversity and inclusion" over speech that does not.

That is the very definition of viewpoint discrimination. The government cannot pass laws that allow citizens, including lawyers, to express one viewpoint on a particular subject but penalize citizens, including lawyers, for expressing an opposing viewpoint on the same subject. It is axiomatic that viewpoint discrimination is "an egregious form of content discrimination," and that "[t]he government must abstain from regulating speech when the specific motivating ideology or the opinion or perspective of the speaker is the rationale for the restriction."⁹¹ Yet proposed ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) explicitly promotes one viewpoint over others.⁹²

Even more importantly, whether speech or action does or does not "promote diversity and inclusion" depends on the beholder's subjective beliefs. Where one person sees inclusion, another may see exclusion. Where one person sees the promotion of diversity, another may equally sincerely see the promotion of uniformity.

Because enforcement of ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) gives government officials unbridled discretion to determine which speech is permissible and which is impermissible, which speech "promote[s] diversity and inclusion" and which does not, the rule clearly countenances viewpoint discrimination based on government officials' subjective biases. Courts have ⁸⁸ See New Hampshire Supreme Court Rule 38, Code of Judicial Conduct Canon 3, R. 3.6, Comments [2] & [4].

⁸⁹ Tenn. Att'y Gen. Letter, supra, note 15, at 9.

⁹⁰ Halaby and Long make the important point that "the terms 'diversity' and 'inclusion' themselves were left undefined" which creates a "quandary that the proponents of the model rule change left for those who might be asked to implement and enforce it in a real world lawyer discipline setting." Halaby & Long, supra, note 6, at 240.

⁹¹ Rosenberger v. Rector & Visitors of Univ. of Virginia, 515 U.S. 819, 829 (1995).

⁹² Rotunda & Dzienkowski, supra note 3, in "§ 8.4-2(j)-2. The New Rule 8.4 and the Free Speech Problems It May Raise" (noting that lawyers who belong to a religious "organization that opposes gay marriage . . . can face problems. If they belong to one that favors gay marriage, then they are home free.").

recognized that giving any government official unbridled discretion to suppress citizens' free speech is unconstitutional viewpoint discrimination.⁹³

For that reason, the “most exacting level of scrutiny would apply to Proposed Rule 8.4(g) because it regulates speech and expressive conduct that is entitled to full First Amendment protection based on viewpoint.”⁹⁴

2. The ABA Model Rule 8.4(g)'s definition of “harassment” is viewpoint discriminatory, as illustrated most recently by the United States Supreme Court's decision in Matal v. Tam in 2017.

In its Comment [3], ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) defines “harassment” to include “derogatory or demeaning verbal . . . conduct.” This definition of “harassment” departs from the United States Supreme Court's much narrower definition of “harassment” as “harassment that is so severe, pervasive, and objectively offensive that it effectively bars the victim's access to an educational opportunity or benefit.”⁹⁵ For that reason alone, its definition of “harassment” diminishes the likelihood that ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) can survive either a facial or an as-applied challenge to its unconstitutional vagueness under the Fourteenth Amendment or its restriction on free speech under the First Amendment.

Of course, the consequences of disciplinary action against an attorney are too great to leave the definition of “harass” so open-ended and subjective. “Harassment” should not reside “in the eye of the beholder,” whether the beholder be the attorney or the alleged victim of harassment, but instead should be determined by an objective standard, as provided by the United States Supreme Court.

The need for an objective definition of “harassment” is apparent in the courts' uniform rejection of university speech codes over the past two decades. The courts have found that speech codes violate freedom of speech because their “harassment” proscriptions are overbroad and unacceptably increase the risk of viewpoint discrimination.⁹⁶ For example, the Third Circuit struck down a campus speech policy “[b]ecause overbroad harassment policies can suppress or even chill core protected speech, and are susceptible to selective application amounting to content-based or viewpoint discrimination.” Quoting then-Judge Alito, the court wrote:

⁹³ See, e.g., Child Evangelism Fellowship v. Montgomery Cty. Pub. Sch., 457 F.3d 376, 384 (4th Cir. 2006); DeBoer v. Village of Oak Park, 267 F.3d 558, 572-574 (7th Cir. 2001).

⁹⁴ Tenn. Att'y Gen. Letter, supra, note 15, at 5, citing Brown v. Entertainment Merchants Ass'n, 564 U.S. at 799.

⁹⁵ Davis v. Monroe Cty. Bd. of Educ., 526 U.S. 629, 633 (1999) (emphasis added).

⁹⁶ See, e.g., McCauley v. Univ. of V.I., 618 F.3d 232, 250, 252 (3d Cir. 2010); Dambrot v. Cent. Mich. Univ., 55 F.3d 1177, 1185 (6th Cir. 1995); Coll. Republicans v. Reed, 523 F. Supp. 2d 1005, 1021 (N.D. Cal. 2007); Roberts v. Haragan, 346 F. Supp. 2d 853, 872 (N.D. Tex. 2004); Blair v. Shippensburg Univ., 280 F. Supp. 2d 357, 370-71 (M.D. Pa. 2003); Pro-Life Cougars v. Univ. of Houston, 259 F. Supp. 2d 575, 584 (S.D. Tex. 2003); Booher v. Bd. of Regents, N. Ky. Univ., 1998 WL 35867183 (E.D. Ky. 1998); UWM Post, Inc. v. Bd. of Regents of Univ. of Wis. Sys., 774 F. Supp. 1163, 1177 (E.D. Wis. 1991); Doe v. Univ. of Mich., 721 F. Supp. 852, 866 (E.D. Mich. 1989).

“Harassing” or discriminatory speech, although evil and offensive, may be used to communicate ideas or emotions that nevertheless implicate First Amendment protections. As the Supreme Court has emphatically declared, “[i]f there is a bedrock principle underlying the First Amendment, it is that the government may not prohibit the expression of an idea simply because society finds the idea offensive or disagreeable.”⁹⁷

A big problem is that ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) was drafted without the benefit of the United States Supreme Court’s 2017 decision in Matal v. Tam.⁹⁸ There the unanimous Court held that the long-established use of a prominent federal law to deny trademarks for terms that were “derogatory or offensive,” even on racial or ethnic grounds, was unconstitutional viewpoint discrimination.⁹⁹

In his concurrence, which was joined by Justice Ginsburg, Justice Sotomayor, and Justice Kagan, Justice Kennedy explained that it was unconstitutional viewpoint discrimination for a government agency to penalize speech that it deemed to be “derogatory”:

At its most basic, the test for viewpoint discrimination is whether—within the relevant subject category—the government has singled out a subset of messages for disfavor based on the views expressed. In the instant case, the disparagement clause the Government now seeks to implement and enforce identifies the relevant subject as “persons, living or dead, institutions, beliefs, or national symbols.” Within that category, an applicant may register a positive or benign mark but not a derogatory one. The law thus reflects the Government’s disapproval of a subset of messages it finds offensive. This is the essence of viewpoint discrimination.¹⁰⁰

⁹⁷ DeJohn v. Temple Univ., 537 F.3d 301, 313-314 (3d Cir. 2008), quoting Saxe v. State College Area Sch. Dist., 240 F.3d 200, 209 (3d Cir. 2001), quoting Texas v. Johnson, 491 U.S. 397, 414 (1989).

⁹⁸ 137 U.S. 1744 (2017).

⁹⁹ Id. at 1754, 1765.

¹⁰⁰ Id. at 1766 (citations omitted) (emphasis added). The Tennessee Attorney General similarly relied on Matal for the proposition that “the public expression of ideas may not be prohibited merely because the ideas are themselves offensive to some of their hearers.” Tenn. Att’y Gen. Letter, supra, note 15, at 6, quoting Matal, 137 S. Ct. at 1763; and citing, Brown, 564 U.S. at 791, 790 (noting that “disgust is not a valid basis for restricting expression”); Snyder v. Phelps, 562 U.S. 443, 458 (2011) (“[S]peech cannot be restricted simply because it is upsetting”); Simon & Schuster, Inc. v. Members of N.Y. State Crime Victims Bd., 502 U.S. 105, 118 (1991) (“[T]he government may not prohibit the expression of an idea simply because society finds the idea itself offensive or disagreeable.” (internal quotation marks omitted)).

C. Who determines whether advocacy is “legitimate” or “illegitimate” under proposed ABA Model Rule 8.4(g)?

ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) cursorily states that it “does not preclude legitimate advice or advocacy consistent with these rules.” But the qualifying phrase “consistent with these rules” makes ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) utterly circular. Like the proverbial dog chasing its tail, ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) protects “legitimate advice or advocacy” only if it is “consistent with” ABA Model Rule 8.4(g). That is, speech is permitted by ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) if it is permitted by ABA Model Rule 8.4(g).

The epitome of an unconstitutionally vague rule, ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) violates the Fourteenth Amendment as well as the First Amendment. Again, who decides which speech is “legitimate” and which speech is “illegitimate”? By what standards? By whose standards?

“In fact, the proposed rule would effectively require enforcement authorities to be guided by their ‘personal predilections’ because whether a statement is ‘harmful’ or ‘derogatory or demeaning’ depends on the subjective reaction of the listener. Especially in today’s climate, those subjective reactions can vary widely.”¹⁰¹

As Halaby and Long note in their survey of the Rule’s many problems, “the word ‘legitimate’ cries for definition.”¹⁰² Indeed, “one difficulty with the ‘legitimate’ qualifier” is that “lawyers need to make the arguments in order to change the law, yet the new model rule obstructs novel legal arguments.”¹⁰³ This is particularly true when “the subject matter is socially, culturally, and politically sensitive.”¹⁰⁴

It is not good for the profession, or for a robust civil society, for lawyers to be potentially subject to disciplinary action every time they speak or write on a topic that may cause someone who disagrees to file a disciplinary complaint to silence them.

V. ABA Model Rule 8.4(g)’s Threat to Free Speech is Compounded by the Fact that It Adopts a Negligence Standard rather than a Knowledge Requirement.

The lack of a knowledge requirement is one of the Rule’s most serious flaws: “[T]he proposed rule would subject an attorney to professional discipline for uttering a statement that ¹⁰¹ Tenn. Att’y Gen. Letter, supra, note 15, at 9 (citation and explanatory parenthetical omitted). See id. (“The lack of clarity in Proposed Rule 8.4(g)’s terms creates a substantial risk that determinations about whether expression is prohibited will be guided by the ‘personal predilections’ of enforcement authorities rather than the text of the rule. Kolender v. Lawson, 461 U.S. 352, 356 (1983) (internal quotation marks omitted).”) See also, id. at 10 (“[T]he [Board of Professional Responsibility] would presumably get to draw the line between legitimate and illegitimate advocacy, creating a further risk that advocacy of controversial or politically incorrect positions would be deemed harassment or discrimination that constitutes professional misconduct.”)

¹⁰² Halaby & Long, supra, note 6, at 237.

¹⁰³ Id. at 238.

¹⁰⁴ Id.

was not actually known to be or intended as harassing or discriminatory, simply because someone might construe it that way.”¹⁰⁵

Professor Dane Ciolino, an ethics law professor at Loyola University New Orleans College of Law, has explained:

[ABA Model Rule 8.4(g)] subjects to discipline not only a lawyer who knowingly engages in harassment or discrimination, but also a lawyer who negligently utters a derogatory or demeaning comment. So, a lawyer who did not know that a comment was offensive will be disciplined if the lawyer should have known that it was. It will be interesting to see how the objectively reasonable lawyer’ will be constructed for purposes of making this determination.¹⁰⁶

Similarly, the Disciplinary Board of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania criticized ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) because:

The Model Rule . . . subjects to discipline not only a lawyer who knowingly engages in harassment or discrimination, but also a lawyer who negligently utters a derogatory or demeaning comment. A lawyer who did not know that a comment was offensive will be disciplined if the lawyer should have known that it was.¹⁰⁷

VI. The Vermont Supreme Court has Interpreted ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) as Limiting a Lawyer’s Ability to Accept, Decline, or Withdraw from a Representation in Accordance with Rule 1.16.

The proponents of ABA Rule 8.4(g) generally claim that it will not affect a lawyer’s ability to refuse to represent a client. They point to the language in the Rule that it “does not limit the ability of a lawyer to accept, decline or withdraw from a representation in accordance with Rule 1.16.” But as Professor Rotunda and Professor Dzienkowski explain, Rule 1.16 actually “deals with when a lawyer must or may reject a client or withdraw from representation.”¹⁰⁸ Rule 1.16 does not address accepting clients. A state attorney general similarly suggests that “[a]n attorney who would prefer not to represent a client because the attorney disagrees with the ¹⁰⁵ Tenn. Att’y Gen. Letter, supra, note 15, at 5. See Halaby & Long, supra, note 6, at 243-245.

¹⁰⁶ Prof. Dane S. Ciolino, “LSBA Seeks Public Comment on Proposed Anti-Discrimination Rule of Professional Conduct,” Louisiana Legal Ethics, Aug. 6, 2017 (emphasis in original), <https://lalegaethics.org/lsba-seeks-public-comment-on-proposed-anti-discrimination-rule-of-professional-conduct/> (last visited May 2, 2018).

¹⁰⁷ The Pennsylvania Bulletin, supra, note 19.

¹⁰⁸ Rotunda & Dzienkowski, supra, note 3, in “§ 8.4-2(j)-2. The New Rule 8.4 and the Free Speech Problems It May Raise” (emphasis supplied by the authors).

position the client is advocating, but is not required under Rule 1.16 to decline the representation, may be accused of discriminating against the client under Proposed Rule 8.4(g).”¹⁰⁹

In the one state to have adopted ABA Model Rule 8.4(g), the Vermont Supreme Court explained in its accompanying Comment [4] that “[t]he optional grounds for withdrawal set out in Rule 1.16(b) must also be understood in light of Rule 8.4(g). They cannot be based on discriminatory or harassing intent without violating that rule.” It further explained that, under the mandatory withdrawal provision of Rule 1.16(a), “a lawyer should withdraw if she or he concludes that she or he cannot avoid violating Rule 8.4(g).”¹¹⁰

The New York State Bar Association Committee on Professional Ethics issued an opinion in January 2017 that concluded that “[a] lawyer is under no obligation to accept every person who may wish to become a client unless the refusal to accept a person amounts to unlawful discrimination.”¹¹¹ The facts before the Committee were that a lawyer had been requested to represent a claimant against a religious institution. Because the lawyer was of the same religion as the institution, he or she was unwilling to represent the claimant against the institution. Believing the definition of “unlawful discrimination” for purposes of New York’s Rule 8.4(g) to be a question of law beyond its jurisdiction, the Committee declined to “opine on whether a lawyer’s refusal to represent a prospective client in a suit against the lawyer’s own religious institution constitutes ‘unlawful discrimination.’”¹¹²

In Stropnick v. Nathanson,¹¹³ the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination found a law firm that specialized in representing women in divorce cases had violated state nondiscrimination law when it refused to represent a man.¹¹⁴ As these examples demonstrate, reasonable doubt exists that Rule 1.16 provides adequate protection for attorneys’ ability to accept, decline, or withdraw from a representation.

VII. Grave Reservations Exist Regarding Whether State Bars Should Be Tribunals of First Resort for Employment and Other Discrimination and Harassment Claims Against Attorneys and Law Firms.

The Disciplinary Board of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania identified two defects of ABA Model Rule 8.4(g). The first was the rule’s “potential for Pennsylvania’s lawyer ¹⁰⁹ Tenn. Att’y Gen. Letter, supra, note 15, at 11.

¹¹⁰ Vermont Supreme Court, Order Promulgating Amendments to the Vermont Rules of Professional Conduct, July 14, 2017, at 3, https://www.vermontjudiciary.org/sites/default/files/documents/PROMULGATEDVPrP8.4\(g\).pdf.pdf).

¹¹¹ NY Eth. Op. 1111, N.Y. St. Bar Assn. Comm. Prof. Eth., 2017 WL 527371 (Jan. 7, 2017) (emphasis supplied.).

¹¹² Id. New York’s Rule 8.4(g) was adopted before ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) and is narrower because it applies only to discrimination made illegal by state and federal law as determined by a non-bar tribunal.

¹¹³ 19 M.D.L.R. 39 (M.C.A.D. 1997), affirmed, Nathanson v. MCAD, No. 199901657, 2003 WL 22480688, 16 Mass. L. Rptr. 761 (Mass. Super. Ct. 2003).

¹¹⁴ Rotunda & Dzienkowski, supra, note 3, in “§ 8.4-2(j)-2. The New Rule 8.4 and the Free Speech Problems It May Raise.”

disciplinary authority to become the tribunal of first resort for workplace harassment or discrimination claims against lawyers.”¹¹⁵ The second defect was that “after careful review and consideration ... the breadth of ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) will pose difficulties for already resource-strapped disciplinary authorities.”¹¹⁶

Model Rule 8.4(g) generates many new concerns. Increased demand may drain the limited resources of the state bar if it becomes the tribunal of first resort for discrimination and harassment claims against lawyers. Serious questions arise about the evidentiary or preclusive effects that a state bar proceeding might have on other tribunals’ proceedings. State bar tribunals have their own rules of procedure and evidence that may be significantly different from state and federal court rules. Often, discovery is more limited in bar proceedings than in civil court. And, of course, there is no right to a jury trial in state bar proceedings.

An attorney may be disciplined regardless of whether her conduct is a violation of any other law. Professor Rotunda and Professor Dzienkowski warn that Rule 8.4(g) “may discipline the lawyer who does not violate any statute or regulation [except Rule 8.4(g)] dealing with discrimination.”¹¹⁷ Nor is “an allegedly injured party [required] to first invoke the civil legal system” before a lawyer can be charged with discrimination or harassment.¹¹⁸

The threat of a complaint under Model Rule 8.4(g) could also be used as leverage in other civil disputes between a lawyer and a former client. Model Rule 8.4(g) even may be the basis of a private right of action against an attorney. Professor Rotunda and Professor Dzienkowski note this risk:

If lawyers do not follow this proposed Rule, they risk discipline (e.g., disbarment, or suspension from the practice of law). In addition, Courts enforce the Rules in the course of litigation (e.g., sanctions, disqualification). Courts also routinely imply private rights of action from violation of the Rules – malpractice and tort suits by third parties (non-clients).¹¹⁹

Unsurprisingly, Professor Rotunda and Professor Dzienkowski disagree with the Rule’s proponents that lawyers “should rely on prosecutorial discretion because disciplinary boards do not have the resources to prosecute every violation.” As discussed supra pp. 31-35, “[d]iscretion, however, may lead to abuse of discretion, with disciplinary authorities going after lawyers who espouse unpopular ideas.”¹²⁰ A lawyer’s loss of his or her license to practice law is a staggering

¹¹⁵ The Pennsylvania Bulletin, supra, note 19.

¹¹⁶ Id.

¹¹⁷ Rotunda & Dzienkowski, supra, note 3 (parenthetical in original).

¹¹⁸ Id.

¹¹⁹ Id.

¹²⁰ Id.

penalty and demands a stringent process, one in which the standards for enforcement are clear and respectful of the attorneys' rights, as well as the rights of others.

Conclusion

Lawyers who live in a free society should rightly insist upon the freedom to speak their thoughts in their social activities, their workplaces, and the public square without fear of losing their license to practice law. Because ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) would drastically curtail lawyers' freedom to express their viewpoints on political, social, religious, and cultural issues, the Court should reject any proposed rule patterned on ABA Model Rule 8.4(g).

For the reasons discussed, the Court should wait to see whether the widespread prediction that ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) will operate as a speech code for attorneys is borne out if it is adopted and implemented in other states. There is no reason to make New Hampshire attorneys laboratory subjects in the ill-conceived experiment that ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) represents. This is particularly true when sensible alternatives are readily available, such as waiting to see whether any other states adopt ABA Model Rule 8.4(g), and observing its impact on attorneys in those states. A decision to reject ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) can always be revisited after other states have served as its testing ground.

Christian Legal Society thanks the Committee for holding this public comment period and considering these comments.

Respectfully submitted,

/s/ David Nammo

David Nammo
CEO & Executive Director
Christian Legal Society
8001 Braddock Road, Ste. 302
Springfield, Virginia 22151
(703) 642-1070
dnammo@clsnet.org