At its May 7, 2020 meeting, the Board of Governors voted to publish proposed Alaska Rule of Professional Conduct (ARPAC) 8.4(f)-(g) to member-ship. You can submit comments regarding the proposed rule to Bar Counsel via email at shannahas@alaskabar.org or by mail to the Alaska Bar Association, P.O. Box 10076, Anchorage, AK 99510. Comments should be received no later than August 3, 2020.

Proposed ARPAC 8.4(f)-(g) was unanimously agreed upon by the Alaska Rules of Professional Conduct Committee, after consideration of all the comments received and working collaboratively throughout the Committee members' various opinions and concerns about the Rule.

How discussion of a rule against discrimination and harassment began

On March 19, 2018, the Bar Counsel Complaint Division received a letter from then-Alaska Attorney General Kathlyn T.internally submitted a complaint that the conduct of opposing counsel that could constitute legal sexual harassment.

We have reviewed the Alaska Rules of Professional Conduct and are unaware whether the conduct is subject to the Committee to consider this question: Is sexual harassment of opposing counsel a violation of the Alaska Rules of Professional Conduct, and if so, which rule would apply?

We refer the status of ABA Model Rule 8.4(g), which expressly addresses discrimination and harassment, and how other jurisdictions had responded to that proposal. He then referred the matter to the Committee with his support.

ABA Model Rule 8.4(d) and its omission from the Alaska Rules

It may be helpful to briefly touch upon that question — whether a present Alaska Rule of Professional Conduct (the "Alaska Rules") applies to harassment or discrimination. Several revisions of the Model Rules, the ABA proposed Model Rule 8.4(d), which provides that it is professional misconduct for a lawyer to: (d) engage in conduct that is prejudicial to the administration of justice.

The Committee reviewed that proposal and determined that this phrase was too vague. It failed to inform a practitioner of what was prohibited and did not provide Bar Counsel with a meaningful tool for enforcement. The Board of Governors approved the Committee's recommendation not to adopt 8.4(d). Therefore, ABA Model Rule 8.4(d) does not appear in the Alaska Rules.

Although it may be that some bar associations use their versions of Model Rule 8.4(d) as a basis for discipline for harassment and discrimination, the Committee maintains that the Alaska Rules must provide more precise guidance.

ABA Model Rule 8.4(g)

ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) provides that it is professional misconduct for a lawyer to: (g) engage in conduct that the lawyer knows or reasonably should know is prejudicial to the administration of justice or is threatening or intimidating judicial proceedings.

The Committee determined that the following aspects of ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) needed to be evaluated and possibly revised:

1. determination of the appropriate mental state - ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) includes a negligent mental state;
2. providing definitions of harassment or discrimination - ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) does not define those terms;
3. determination of protected classes for the discrimination portion of the Rule and addressing the possibility that, as drafted, ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) contains a broad scope of activities; and
4. determination of whether the rule should apply to workplace harassment or discrimination - ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) does so.

The materials reviewed by the Committee in addressing these issues included ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) and the relevant ABA comments received from Bar members, the comments received from non-Bar members; the comments made at the September 5, 2019 Board of Governors meeting; a summary prepared by Bar Counsel of National Page of what other bar associations have done with regard to ABA Model Rule 8.4(g), which concluded that at that time only one bar association had adopted it in its current form; several letters from Supreme Court Judges commenting on the First Amendment and the possibility of what speech may be regulated; several law review articles discussing the scope of restrictions on speech; several municipal codes from across Alaska that prohibit discrimination; and Alaska statutory prohibiting harassment and prohibiting enhanced sentencing in a criminal case if the victim is a member of a protected class, and that status was related to the offense; and a brief overview of the federal law.

The Committee met on six occasions to review and discuss these materials in an effort to resolve these questions. Significant work was done by members in preparation for each meeting. Comments, research materials, additional research tips, and proposed edits were circulated by members prior to and after each meeting.

(1) mental state

ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) includes the mental state or reasonably should know which is the mental state limited to negligence. There is no requirement that the actor in fact know that their conduct constitutes discrimination or harassment. Many of the comments and the articles reviewed expressed concern about this aspect of ABA Model Rule 8.4(g).

The Committee agreed that "reasonably should know" should be included in the Alaska Rules. One of the most important factors in reaching that conclusion was Alaska Rule of Professional Conduct 8.1(h), which defines "knowingly" as follows:

"Knowingly"... denotes actual knowledge of the fact in question. A person's knowledge may be inferred from circumstances.

In light of Rule 8.1(h), a simple denial that the attorney did not know that the conduct constituted harassment or invidious discrimination will not end the inquiry. Under Proposed Rule 8.4(g), Bar Counsel will be fully empowered to look to the specific conduct, the circumstances of that conduct, and any other relevant evidence in determining if the action was done "knowingly."

(2) scope of covered activities

The original proposed ABA Model Rule, which the Board of Governors circulated in August 2018, was not adopted. The proposed rule was intended to apply to all members of the bar, including those in private practice, in representing clients; interacting with witnesses, coworkers, court personnel, lawyers and others while engaged in the practice of law; operating or managing a law firm or law practice; and participating in bar association business or social activities in connection with the practice of law. Conduct related to the practice of law.

The Committee ultimately modified ABA Model Rule 8.4(g)'s language to limit the scope of the proposed Alaska Rule. In the Comment to the ABA Model Rule, "conduct related to the practice of law" is defined to include:

representing clients, interacting with witnesses, coworkers, court personnel, lawyers and others while engaged in the practice of law; operating or managing a law firm or law practice; and participating in bar association business or social activities in connection with the practice of law.

The Committee narrowed the application of the Alaska Rules to conduct that impacts the administration of justice as noted in the Comment to the Rule.

[O]ur justice system depends on the effectiveness of adversary counsel. One of the fundamental aims of our court rules, the Rules of Professional Conduct, to assure that adversaries have an equal opportunity to present their case to the Board of Governors.

The Committee believes Proposed Rule 8.4(g) strikes the proper balance between protecting the rights of an attorney and the public interest.

ction as a basis for discipline. The Committee concluded that Bar Counsel, Area Hearing Committees, and the Disciplinary Board are not fully equipped to make the kinds of detailed findings necessary to address these concerns and substantive legal issues. The proposed Rule does include a basis for discipline that an agency like the Alaska Human Rights Commission or the EEOC could determine the conduct took place. Specifically, the Rule provides:

(1) professional misconduct for a lawyer to knowingly engage in harassment or vindictive discrimination in the lawyer's dealings with the lawyer, paralegals, and others working for that lawyer or for that lawyer's law firm, if the lawyer's conduct results in a final agency or judicial determination of employment misconduct or discrimination.

(2) protected classes covered by the discrimination portion of the rule

ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) might be read to require that both harassment and discrimination be linked to a protected class in order to support disciplin. To avoid any ambiguity, the Committee has made clear that the prohibition of harassment defined in Proposed Rule 8.4(g)(1) is not linked to any protected class of individuals. The prohibition of vindictive discrimination defined in Proposed Rule 8.4(g)(2) is linked to protected classes.

The Committee reviewed ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) and its list of protected classes. This resulted in the elimination of one protected class: “socioeconomic status.” The ABA report did not explain why this class was included, nor did the committee to which it referred the report. The Committee agreed that particularly in light of the lack of legislative record from the ABA, it was not a sufficiently precise term to include in the Alaska Rule.

The Committee did review the scope of protected classes in the Alaska Human Rights Commission, portions of the Alaska Criminal Code that provide certain enhanced punishments, and pending Alaska legislation that would expand the scope of “hate crimes” victims. As a result of the following additional changes were made to the ABA Model rule:

- “gender” replaces “sex”
- “color” is included
- “sexual identity” is included
- “pregnancy or parenthood” is included
- “veteran status” is included

(4) definition of harassment

ABA Model Rule 8.4(g) does not include a definition of harassment, but its Comment provides:

Harassment includes sexual harassment and derogatory or demeaning verbal or physical conduct. Sexual harassment includes unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, and other unwelcome verbal or physical contact of a sexual nature. The substantive law of anti-discrimination and anti-harassment statutes and case law may guide application of paragraph (g).

The Committee has always required that important terms be defined, either in the specific rule itself, or in the definitions found in Alaska Rule 9.1. The Committee concluded that the definition of harassment should be in the rule itself, selected one based on the formulation used by the EEOC and included it in Proposed Rule 8.4(g)(1).

(5) definition of vindictive discrimination

The Committee based the definition of vindictive discrimination on the Comment to the Alaska Code of Judicial Conduct Canon 2C. Of note is the insertion of the word “vindictive,” prior to the word discrimination. This term, commonly used in the law, is to highlight that the Rule is not intended to apply to the simple process of making choices. Rather, the unequal treatment must have “no reasonable relation to a legitimate purpose.” Proposed Rule 8.4(g)(2) contains the definition of “vindictive discrimination.”

Conclusion

The Committee believes that its redrafting of ABA Model Rule 8.4(g), as set forth in Proposed Rule 8.4(f)-(g), addresses harassment and vindictive discrimination while meeting the following goals:

- narrows the required mental state
- narrows the scope of conduct covered
- provides definitions to critical terms
- refines the scope of protected classes
- provides clear notice of what is considered to be professional misconduct.

Comparison of the ABA Model Rule with Alaska Proposed Rule

ABA Model Rule 8.4(g)

It is professional misconduct for a lawyer to:

(g) engage in conduct that the lawyer knows or reasonably should know is harassment or discrimination on the basis of race, sex, religion, national origin, ethnicity, disability, age, sexual orientation, gender identity, marital status or socioeconomic status in conduct related to the practice of law. This paragraph does not limit the ability of a lawyer to accept, decline or withdraw from a representation in accordance with Rule 1.16. This paragraph does not preclude legitimate advice or advocacy consistent with these rules.

COMMENT

[3] Discrimination and harassment by lawyers in violation of paragraph (g) undermine confidence in the legal profession and the legal system. Such discrimination includes harmful verbal or physical conduct that manifests bias or prejudice towards others. Harassment includes sexual harassment and derogatory or demeaning verbal or physical conduct. Sexual harassment includes unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors and other unwelcome verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature. See substantive law of anti-discrimination and anti-harassment statutes and case law. See 12A-3 (g) (2) and (3) for an application of paragraph (g).

Lawyers may engage in conduct undertaken to promote diversity and inclusion without violating this Rule. It is common to engage in networking, mentoring, teaching, representing diverse clients and sponsoring diverse law student organizations.

A trial judge's finding that peremptory challenges were exercised on a discriminatory basis does not alone establish a violation of paragraph (g).

ARPC Committee Proposal 8.4(g) and (h)

It is professional misconduct for a lawyer to:

(h) engage in conduct that the lawyer knows is harassment or invidious discrimination during the lawyer's professional relations with (1) officers, employees or agents of a tribunal; (2) clients or other lawyers or persons working for the latter, (3) parties, regardless of whether they are represented by counsel; (4) witnesses; or (5) jurors.

In addition, it is professional misconduct for a lawyer to knowingly engage in harassment or invidious discrimination in the lawyer's dealings with the lawyer's paralegals, and other persons working for the lawyer's law firm, if the lawyer's conduct results in a formal agency or judicial determination of employment misconduct or discrimination.

This rule does not prohibit a lawyer from engaging in legitimate counseling or advocacy when a person's membership in a protected class is material. This rule does not limit the ability of a lawyer to accept, decline or withdraw from a representation in accordance with Rule 1.16.

For purposes of paragraph (h):

1. "Harassment" means unwelcome conduct, whether verbal or physical, that creates an environment of intimidation or abuse through the use of threatening, intimidating, or intimidating behavior that a reasonable lawyer would find sufficiently severe or pervasive to adversely affect the lawyer's ability to practice law.

2. "Invidious discrimination" means unequal treatment of a person because of their membership in a protected class when that unequal treatment has no reasonable relation to a legitimate purpose.

3. "Protected class" refers to a person's race, color, gender, sexual identity or orientation, religion, ethnicity, national origin, disability, age, marital status, pregnancy or parenthood, or status as a veteran.

4. "Witness" includes any person who is contacted in connection with a matter because that person may have knowledge or information pertinent to the matter.

COMMENT

Rules 8.4(f) and (g) are intended to be a counterpart to Rules 4.1, 4.3, 4.4, and 4.5. It is undertaken that in representing a client, a lawyer shall not use means that lack any substantial purpose other than to embarrass, delay, or burden a third person.

Harassment and invidious discrimination are intolerable because of their adverse effect on the proper administration of justice. The administration of justice is impeded when a lawyer engages in conduct that has no legitimate purpose other than to intimidate or harass those who have independent responsibilities and roles in the justice system.

For instance, our justice system depends on the effectiveness of adversary counsel. One of the fundamental aims of our court rules, including the Rules of Professional Conduct, is to ensure that all parties are afforded an opportunity to present their case, as well as to advance the achievement of a just result. A lawyer's harassment or invidious discrimination against the participants in a case can impact their effectiveness, whether as advocate or opposing party or as the lawyer's client. An attorney who discriminates in such conduct cannot perform the proper administration of justice, and undermines public respect for, and acceptance of, our adversarial system and the legal profession.

The persons who are protected from a lawyer's harassment or invidious discrimination under this rule include state and federal court judges, jurors and others who have engaged in the selection process and have been sworn to adjudicate a case. Allegations of harassment or invidious discrimination against prospective jurors should be handled by trial judges through the procedures developed under British West Virginia (1995).

A lawyer's harassing or invidiously discriminatory conduct directed to persons working for the lawyer or the lawyer's firm adversely affects the proper administration of justice by undermining confidence in the legal profession. Because agencies and courts routinely adjudicate disputes arising out of allegations of harassment and invidious discrimination in the workplace, the existence of such misconduct should be determined, in the first instance, by an agency or court before it may be the subject of professional discipline.

Definitions

1. "Party" denotes anyone who participates in, and who has a legal interest in the outcome of, any matter for which the lawyer has been engaged.

COMMENT

Parties

In a lawsuit or proceeding before a tribunal, the parties include plaintiffs and defendants, petitioners and respondents, complainants, cross-complainants, cross-defendants, and all other persons with equivalent roles in the lawsuit or proceeding, no matter how they are denominated. In the negotiation, drafting, or assertion of a contract or other agreement, the parties include all individuals who are bound, or will be bound, by the terms of the agreement. If the matter for which the lawyer has been engaged concerns only giving advice without interaction with third parties, then the only parties are the lawyer's clients.

Throughout the Rules of Professional Conduct, words in the singular include the plural and words in the plural include the singular.
